Vietnam cease-fire signed to bring peace after long, costly war

PARIS (AP) — Agreements on ending the fighting in Vietnam and calling for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces were signed today in two sessions in the ballroom of an old hotel near the Arc de Triomphe.

In the first session this morning, the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong signed the overall agreement that for the United States means the end of the longest war in its history and a conflict paid for in the lives of nearly 46,000 men and billions of dollars.

This signing took 18 minutes and ended with champagne toasts. But outside, demonstrators were waving Viet Cong and North Vietnamese flags and booed the Americans and the South Vietnamese.

In the second signing session, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh of North Vietnam signed a separate group of documents and this officially brought an end to the diplomatic efforts for peace in Vietnam that began in 1968.

The agreements call for a cease-fire to begin at midnight Greenwich Mean Time — 6 p.m., CST.

In the morning session, each of the four envoys signed their names 32 times. Then in the afternoon session, Rogers and Trinh each signed 40 times more.

Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam and Mrs. Nguyen Tri Binh, the Viet Cong foreign minister, joined Rogers and Trinh in the signing of the over-all agreement in the morning session.

After this session the South Vietnamese officially protested to the French government, host of the signing ceremonies, that the demonstrations outside the old Majestic Hotel had disturbed "the serenity" of the occasion.

The demonstrators booed and jeered as the U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations arrived and left. They cheered and sang the Socialist anthem, "International," when the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong officials came and departed.

When Rogers and Trinh arrived for the second session the demonstrators were gone.

Trinh arrived first and Rogers followed about five minutes later with his wife.

Rogers and Trinh entered the main conference room, once a ballroom, and sat at a table across from each other.

They were flanked by their principal aides.

Both used a number of pens for the historic ceremony.

Each signed his name to copies of the main peace accord and the protocols.

The main accord is officially entitled "Agreement on Ending the War and Restoring Peace in Vietnam." In addition there are four protocols on release of prisoners, establishment of an International Control and Supervision Commission, a Temporary Joint Military Commission and the removal of mines from North Vietnamese waters.

The agreement signed by the four was different from that signed by Rogers and Trinh alone only in the preamble and designation of signatories. The agreement signed by all four ministers referred only to "the parties participating in the Paris conference on Vietnam." The agreement signed only by the United States and North Vietnam formally named the four "parties."

In the morning, the delegates of the four parties signed at a table and then walked back into an adjoining room. They did not shake hands. But one informant who was present said the atmosphere was relaxed and all four parties exchanged champagne toasts to peace and friendship.

Each delegation was given a copy of the documents, bound in different colored, gold-embossed leather.

The U.S. copies were in navy blue; the South Vietnamese in brown, the North Vietnamese, red, and the Viet Cong, green.

The close of the ceremony was delayed a bit because some copies had to be taken back to the envoys for signatures inadvertently missed in the original rotation.

The champagne toasts lasted about 15 minutes and the envoys then left the conference hall without making any statements and returned to the waiting cars just as the sun broke through an overcast sky.

As the U.S. and South Vietnamese delegations left, the crowd across the street booed and jeered, then burst into the "International" as the Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Binh, came into view.

The South Vietnamese delegation announced later that it had expressed "its deep surprise" to the French government for permitting the demonstration to take place near the scene of the signing.

"The French authorities had promised the South Vietnamese delegation that no gathering or demonstration would be allowed near the center."

Foreign Minister Lam then protested personally to Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann.

While he said he had not discussed with Schumann the question of Paris being the site of the 12-nation international conference on Vietnam later, he noted that "such demonstrations are not of a nature to ensure the serenity of the negotiations."

About 300 French and Vietnamese, waving a forest of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong flags, stood behind police barriers opposite the entrance to the conference center.

Lam said on leaving Schumann that the demonstrations "disturbed the serenity of the signing ceremony."

Signed at the first ceremony were three protocols, or annexes, and the main agreement entitled: "Agreement on Ending the War and Restoring Peace in Vietnam."

The protocols cover the release of prisoners, the operation of the four-nation control commission of Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary and the operation of the temporary Joint Military Commission to be set up by the four parties to the agreements.

The documents set aside for Rogers and Trinh were three protocols plus a fourth covering U.S. removal of American mines dropped in North Vietnamese waters.

The only difference in the documents in the morning and afternoon session is in the preamble and the designation of the signatories.

Nixon's budget is $268.7 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has told congressional leaders that his fiscal 1974 budget will total $268.7 billion, an increase of about $19 billion over spending for the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told newsmen of the fiscal 1974 budget after he emerged from a White House meeting Friday called to brief congressional leaders. The budget goes to Congress Monday.

Mansfield said the new budget would carry a deficit of about $12 billion, less than half of the current year's projected red-ink total of $25 billion.

The White House announced that Nixon would make a nationwide radio address Sunday at 6 p.m. to discuss the new budget and "its impact on the nation's economy and economic stability."

Official confirmation also was made Friday of White House plans to dismantle the White House offices of Economic Opportunity, Emergency Preparedness, Science and Technology and the National Aeronautics and Space Council in an effort to cut costs. Other agencies are to take up their duties.

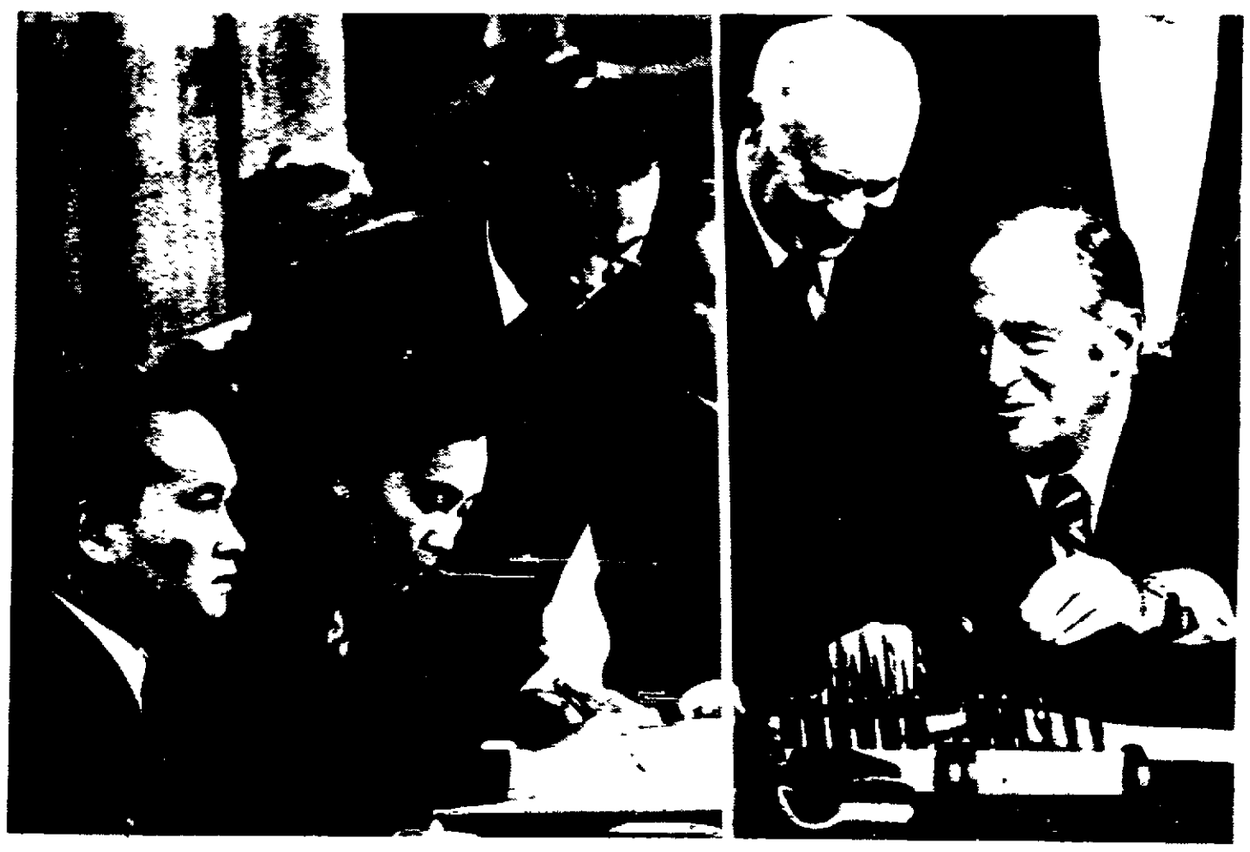

Confirmation of the cutbacks, taken alongside Nixon's scheduled radio speech, heightened speculation that the White House is anticipating a battle in Congress this year over the budget.

That was supported further in a Nixon talk Friday to directors of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

"I'm in the midst of one of our more difficult meetings— the beginning of a new battle, the battle of the budget," he told the group.

The administration has said that the only way to avoid a tax hike or a big resurgence of inflation is to bring the budget under control, which it says can only be done by slashing costs.

Mansfield also told newsmen that Congress should stay within the budget ceiling drawn this year by the White House, the first official word the administration plans to ask Congress for a legal ceiling this year.

Alcohol, tobacco not under price controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting to define food under Phase 3 wage-price guidelines, the Cost of Living Council has exempted alcoholic beverages, tobacco and drugs from mandatory controls.

The council said Friday that any items "produced or manufactured for human ingestion, but not including alcoholic beverages, tobacco products or drugs," are subject to mandatory controls.

Mandatory controls mean a firm cannot raise prices without justifying them. Nor can it exceed a profit margin or percentage markup set by the council.

The food, construction and health industries remained under mandatory wage-price controls when Phase 3 was put into effect Jan. 11, while the remainder of the economy went under voluntary restraints.

Firms covered by mandatory controls, the council said further, are those deriving at least 20 per cent or $50 million of their annual revenues from the sale of food. Large restaurants, caterers and vending-machine operators are subject to the mandatory controls, the council said.

Products eaten by both humans and beasts will be exempt from mandatory controls until they "enter into a processing stage" where they are intended for strict human ingestion, the council said.

The new regulations don't apply to raw farm products until after the first sale, and wholesalers are still permitted to pass along any increases in those products when they sell such items.

The controls continue to set a ceiling on price increases based on a firm's profit margin before controls were instituted.

Officials said alcoholic beverages were exempted because they are not included in the federal food price index that is used to calculate the cost of living and "liquor prices have not been a problem in Phase 2."

Under the council's definition, any ice purchased to put in a drink will be subject to mandatory controls—if the ice company is big enough—and while the liquor won't be, the mixer will.

Corn, wheat and soybeans will be covered if they are to be made into breakfast cereal, cooking oil or other products for human consumption but not if they are sold as livestock feed.

Last-minute fighting fierce in attempted land grab before truce

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces stormed into the major city of Tay Ninh and its Cao Dai temple today and attacked smaller towns across South Vietnam in what U.S. officials said was a grab for land before the cease-fire.

It has been widely presumed by allied officials that the Viet Cong would like to claim Tay Ninh City, a provincial capital 55 miles northwest of Saigon, as a political base.

They believe it is important to the Communists because the city is near Viet Cong and North Vietnamese military bases and supply depots along the Cambodian border.

The South Vietnamese military command said the Communist troops had been driven out of several hamlets around Tay Ninh. But they acknowledged enemy troops still held two edges of the city.

U.S. officials said the attacks might prove of some success to the Communists in giving them control in new areas before the cease-fire goes into effect at 8 a.m. Sunday — 6 p.m. CST today.

One U.S. soldier who watched a buddy die in a predawn rocket attack on Da Nang Air Base said, "The only irony of it is that a good friend of mine from the same hometown as I'm from was killed this morning. He was supposed to start initial out-processing this morning to leave. He just got killed."

He was the third American serviceman to die since the cease-fire was announced Wednesday. A Marine Security Guard was killed in a rocket attack on the Bien Hoa Air Base early Friday, and an observer was killed the same day when his helicopter crashed 100 miles east of Saigon. Thirty-one American servicemen and civilian advisors and technicians have been killed since Wednesday.

The U.S. command reported 160 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks across South Vietnam during the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, the highest number in nearly a year. About two-thirds of the attacks were by rocket barrages, and it was the third consecutive day of high enemy attacks.

The Saigon command claimed 533 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed. South Vietnamese reported their loss was at least 70 men killed and 363 wounded. Still fragmentary reports listed at least 10 civilians killed, 44 wounded and more than 30 homes destroyed.

North Vietnamese troops also fought their way into Trang Bom Village, about 20 miles northeast of Saigon on Highway 1, and fighting was reported near the district town of Trang Bang, along Highway 1 about 30 miles to the northwest.

Nixons to declare thanks

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Like countless Americans across the nation President Nixon and his family will say prayers of thanksgiving today as the shooting ends in this country's longest war.

Nixon, his wife Pat and daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower plan to attend a special church service at 6 p.m. CST the Key Biscayne Presbyterian Church near the Florida White House. Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Nixon flew to Florida from Washington on Friday shortly after he signed a proclamation designating that hour for prayer and thanksgiving. It coincides with the hour a cease-fire is to take place in Vietnam.

The President issued the proclamation after Congress requested one be made.

In it he said in part:

"A long and trying ordeal for America has ended. Our nation has achieved its goal for peace with honor in Vietnam.

"As a people with a deep and abiding faith, we know that no great work can be accomplished without the aid and inspiration of almighty God. No time can be more fitting for grateful prayer and meditation than the opening moment of the peace we have achieved with His help.

"Now, therefore, I do hereby designate 6 p.m. Central Standard Time as a national moment of prayer and thanksgiving and the 24-hour period beginning then as a national day of prayer and thanksgiving."

The Rev. John Huffman, who is pastor of the Key Biscayne church Nixon often attends and who has preached for Nixon at the White House, will lead the prayers for the First Family.

Papermakers, Rockets and Terrors win

KIMBERLY — Lee Reider scored 23 points and Chuck Ruys contributed 18 to propel the league-leading Kimberly Papermakers to a 72-51 Fox Valley Association victory over Oshkosh North here Friday night.

With the win, Kimberly boosted its FVA record to 9-1, while the Spartans slipped to 2-8.

Reider, a 5-11 senior, scored the majority of his 10 baskets from long range. In addition to his offensive performance, Ruys, a 6-5 junior pivotman, blocked four shots and hauled down a bushel of rebounds.

"I hate to single out an individual because we worked together well as a unit," Kimberly Coach Jack Wippich said. "But that Ruys was really tremendous on the boards tonight." In regard to Reider's performance, the veteran KHS mentor assessed; "We usually count on Lee from anywhere within 20 feet."

The Spartans trailed by only one point (11-10) at the end of the first quarter as the Papermakers abandoned their customary fast break tactics in favor of a more deliberate style of game.

"I wanted to teach the boys patience during that first quarter," Wippich observed. The boys have to learn that there's more than one way to play the game of basketball."

Three baskets by Reider and Ruys helped KHS outscore Oshkosh North, 21-13, in the second quarter and take a 32-23 lead into the locker room.

After intermission, the hosts went back to their fast break offense, and began to gradually pull away. With 6:05 left in the third period, Randy Thiel connected with a short jumper to stretch Kimberly's lead to 40-27.

Following a successful 20-footer by North's John Schuttenhelm, Reider scored two straight buckets to up the victors' advantage to 44-29. At the 1:49 juncture, Joe Berghuis meshed a 5 footer to give Kimberly an 11-point (48-37) cushion at the end of three sessions

Thiel counted six points in the final period, including four free throws in as many tries, as the hosts registered a 24-14 scoring edge.

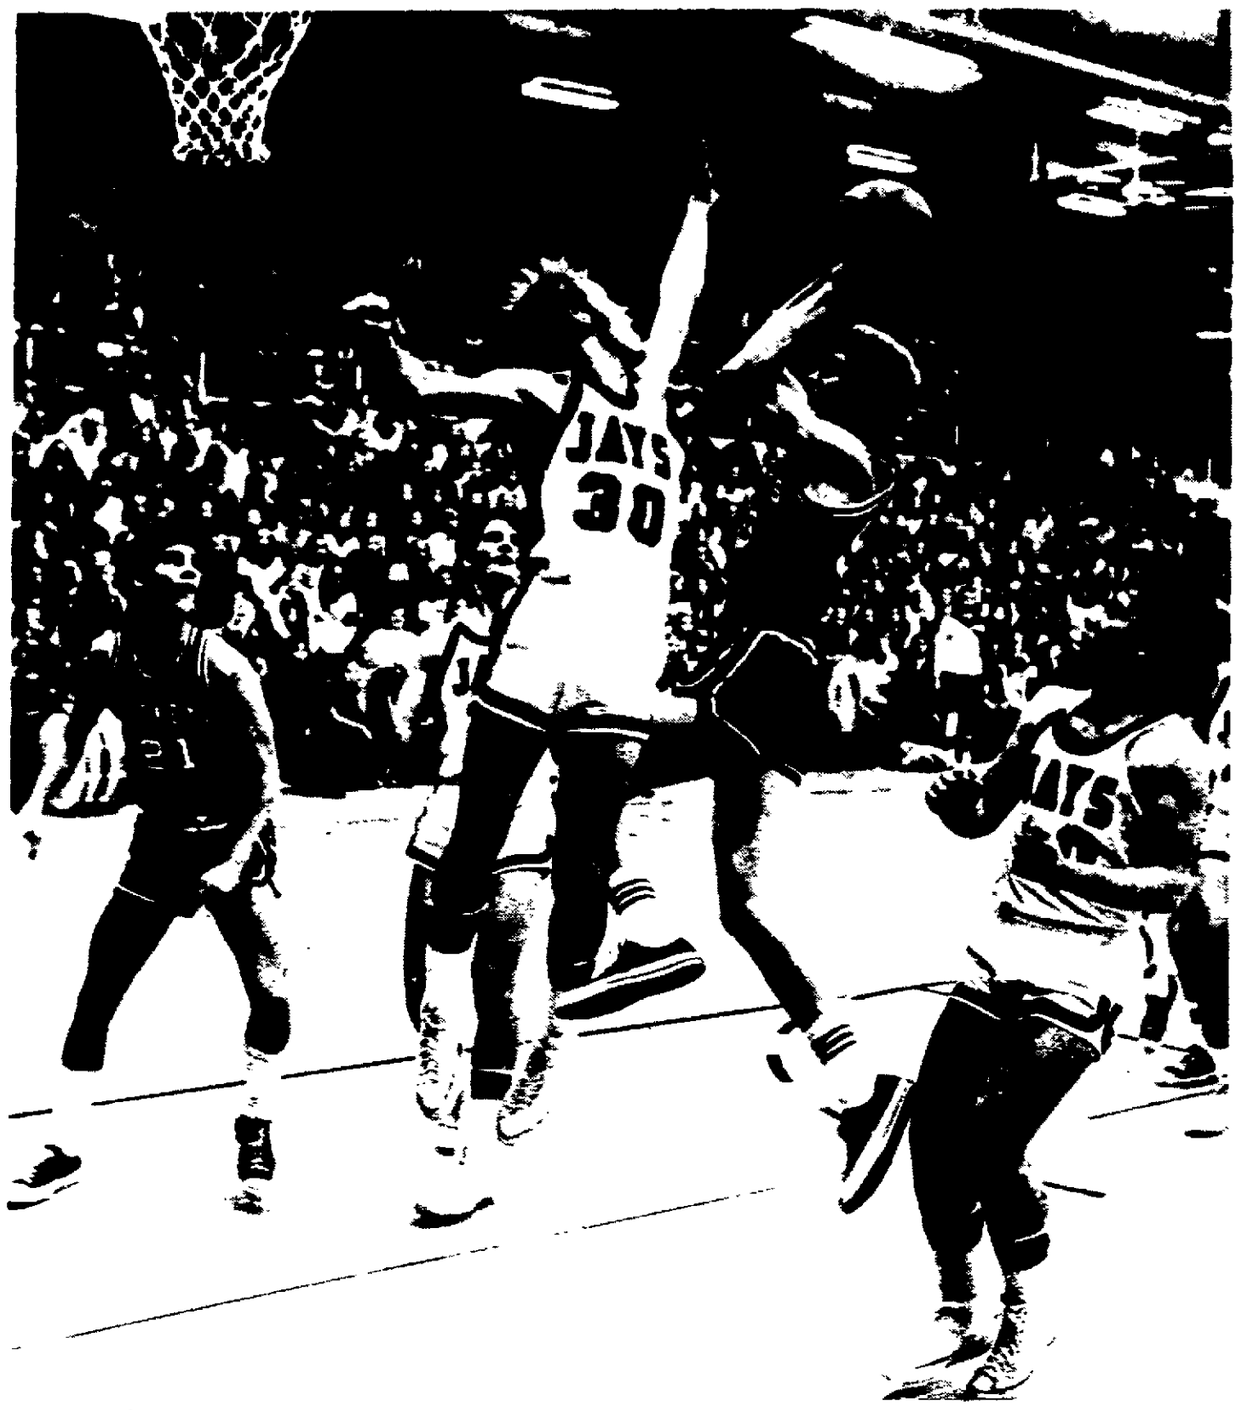

Another reason for Kimberly's relatively easy triumph was the way its defense contained Oshkosh North's Nels Naslund, who had an 18.9 FVA average going into the game. He was held to eight points. Said wippich: "Naslund is basically a driver, and when you take that away from him, it makes it pretty rough."

Unofficial statistics showed that Kimberly made 29 field goals in 61 tries, for a 47.5 per cent rate of accuracy, while the Spartans hit 21 of 60 for 35 per cent.

Other top scorers were Thiel (13) and North's Schuttenhelm and Jim Flood (12).

MENASHA — Chalking up a 41-18 scoring bulge in the last 12½ minutes, Neenah High School jarred Menasha, 85-52, for its eighth Fox Valley Association triumph in 10 starts here Friday night.

The Rockets owned a 41-26 halftime lead, but the Bluejays put on a brief spurt during thr first three minutes of the third stanza to reduce the difference to nine points, at 43-34.

Coach Ron Einerson's forces then connected for nine of the next 10 points and went on to rebuild their spread to 15 (56-41) at the close of the quarter.

The fourth period was all Neenah's. The visitors canned the first 13 markers and wound up by scoring 29 while the Jays only managed 11.

Bluejay Coach Clem Massey had manpower problems in that guard Rory Bennett wasn't in unifore because of an ankle injury and starter Dave Kolasinski fouled out before the first half was over.

The Menashans did a fairly good job on the boards but one time they missed a shot and five tips and a few seconds later put up four without any results.

But, their defense leaked at times, allowing the Rockets good shots and the visitors responded by sinking a high percentage of them.

Neenah, in gaining a 21-13 lead at the end of the first quarter, hit eight of 13 field goals and in the second frame dropped in eight of 12 for a blistering 16 of 25 for the first half. It finished well above the .500 mark for the game, hitting 32 of 54.

Menasha dropped in 22 baskets in 64 tries, including only seven of 24 in the third quarter when the game got away from them. Turnovers also were costly and the Rockets converted a number of the Jays' 26 miscues into points. Neenah was guilty of 18 mistakes, including 10 in the third quarter.

"We shot very well and they were good shots," Einerson said after the game. "We got away from them when they got in foul trouble." He said Steve Suechting played well, boarding hard in addition to his 13 points, and that Brett Huus again was consistent.

The Rockets, who now have won four straight, played well in its last three games, the coach said, although he noted some spotty play.

Huus walked off with scoring honors, getting 26 points on 10 baskets, most of them from outside, and six free throws. Suechting was runnerup and Ben Luebke added 12 points.

Paul Wisnefski racked up 16 for the Jays, including five first quarter baskets. Sophomore Marshall Richards, who drew a starting assignment, hit 10 points and impressed with his aggressive floor play.

For 26½ minutes, it was a typically glove-tight Appleton East-Appleton West basketball batyle Friday night . . . with the Terrors holding a tenuous 4-point lead (29-25).

Then, without warning, West's Terrors blew the game open with a run of 13 straight points and thundered to a revenge-consummating 44-27 victory. The stunning finish, viewed by a capacity crowd in Seims Gym, kept the co-runnerup Terrors (8-2) within one game of the Fox Valley Association-leading Kimberly and boosted their perfect home court record to 8-0. East (6-4) now trails the Papermakers by three games with only four to go.

After the game a perplexed Tom Gossens, Patriot coach, shook his head over the 27-point total and his team's 22.6 per cent flor shooting (12 of 53). "Maybe," he mused, "it was their good defense." . . ."Maybe they wanted it more than we did."

Gossens said no team of his had ever scored so few points. "We might have shot just as poorly at some time, but we scored more points because of free throws." East sank three of six free throws in the first half but didn't get a single try from the foul line in the second half due to West's stifling — yet careful — defensive play.

"We hustled and played good enough defense to win," Gossens declared. Indeed, the Patriots held AHS-W to two fewer points than they did last month when they scored a 57-46 triumph. But, on the attack, East was 30 under its December production.

First and foremost, the victory was a team effort, according to a highly-satisfied coach, West's Dick Emanuel, who lauded not only his five starters but his two top reserves, Al Wachtendonk and John Snow. "We played real aggressively and hustled every minute," said Emanuel, who evened his rivalvry with Gossens, first-year East coach, and ran his coaching margin in the 6-year intracity series to 11-6.

Emanuel said his team stayed right with East, enven though the Patriots are a more physical team and "we controlled the ball in the final last four or five minutes."

West emerged from a bristling first-half defensive duel with a 17-15 lead, as Mike Brouillard hit a 15-footer from the left side with one second remaining. Both teams turned loose a glue-like man-to-man defense and neither attack could function well. East actually got better penetration and better shots in the first half—but the Patriots missed a number of easy buckets.

East's Mark Bleier scored in the first nine seconds of the third quarter to knot the game for the first time, 17-all. With 7:25 left in the period, West's Dave Thiel fired one home from the left baseline, and West was ahead to stay Carl Joosten paced the Terrors to an 8-point lead (27-19) in thr ensuing 6 minutes, but Bruce Clark and Mike Huebner hit the final two goals of the quarter, and East was back within four (27-23).

Snow and Bleier traded 15-footers in the opening moments of the final quarter. With 5:13 left to play, Bill Garvey began his own and West's heroics with a free throw. Fifteen seconds later. Garvey sank another free

Jabbar, Bucks rip Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons knew they'd have trouble guarding Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in their National Basketball Association contest Friday night; in fact they even hired a couple of special policemen.

But the combined efforts of five Pistons in short pants and the two policemen in long pants still couldn't stop the giant center as Jabbar pumped in 35 points to lead the Bucks to a 117-105 victory over Detroit before 9,917.

"My club played well," said Piston Coach Ray Scott, "but you just can't stop that Jabbar."

Jabbar had a good supporting cast, too.

Bob Dandridge finished with 22 points and Lucius Allen chipped in with 20, while Oscar Robertson had 14 along with a season high of 16 assists.

"We really had a good offense tonight," said Larry Costello. "We got a super effort from Jabbar, Allen, Robertson and Dandridge.

"We especially got a lot of support from Oscar."

Curtis Rowe with 30 points and Dave Bing with 22 topped the Pistons.

Bob Lanier, who spent the night trying to stop Jabbar, was held to 17 points.

What about the two policemen?

They were hired by the Pistons' management to guard Jabbar in the event of any crowd unpleasantness regarding the shooting of five Muslems in a Jabbar-owned house in Washington last week.

Jabbar said the special guards didn't disturb him, but said he wished the situation was "cleared up."

Costello, however, said he found it hard to play when "police were around all the time."

The victory was Milwaukee's ninth in 10 games. The Bucks had an eight-game winning streak snapped in Houston Thursday night.

Milwaukee broke away in the first period with a 15-2 spurt after the Pistons had taken a 23-20 lead and the Bucks barely broke a sweat after that.

Jabbar had 13 points in the first period and Dandridge had 10.

After the Pistons pulled to within four points in the second period, the Bucks pulled away to a 63-55 halftime lead and expanded it to 87-72 at the end of three periods.

"The Pistons were apparently unable to shoot consistently," said Costello. "When they came close to us we were able to spring Lucius (Allen) free and that made the difference."

Milwaukee finished with 37 assists, including 23 in the first half, when the Bucks tied a Cobo Arena record set by the Pistons against New York in 1962.

Jabbar hit on 14 of his 18 shots from the field for the Bucks, who shot over 60 per cent in each of the four periods.

'Buffalo Bill' increases 'Crosby' lead to four

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper carried a bulging four-stroke lead into today's third round of Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am Golf Tournament, but he was far from overconfident.

"There's a lot of golf left," Casper said. "Anything can happen in 36 holes."

Most of it happened to Jack Nicklaus on just one hole—the 17th at Cypress Point Friday. He had a triple bogey seven there and looked almost puzzled as he mused: "Without ever playing a bad shot I make seven."

He was in position to make a run at the streaking Casper until that one got him and left "Buffalo Bill" well in front with a 66-67—133, 11 under par after two rounds

Orville Moody, who has had his problems in the years since his 1969 U.S. Open victory, came out of the pack with a brilliant 66 to take second at 137.

Nicklaus, who won the first of his seven 1972 titles in this tournament and was heavily favored to do it again, was tied for third at 140 with young Don Iverson. Nicklaus had a 69 despite his troubles on 17. Iverson put together a 68 at Pebble Beach, including an eight on the 14th hole.

The group at 141, a distant eight strokes off the lead, included Gibby Gilbert, Don Massengale and former PGA champions Bobby Nichols and Ray Floyd. Gilbert had a 67, Floyd 70, Nichols 71 and Massengale 72.

British Open champion Lee Trevino improved to a 70 for 144 while Arnold Palmer threeputted three times and was well back with a 73-145. Australian Bruce Crampton, winner of the last two tour events, was in danger of missing the cut for the final round Sunday with a 149 total.

Casper played his round at Spyglass Hill. Moody and Iverson were at Pebble Beach and Nicklaus at Cypress Point. The pros play one round on each of the courses before the field is cut at the end of 54 holes for the last 18 at Pebble Beach.

McCafferty takes over Lions

BY BRUCE LOWITT
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS WRITER

Everybody figured Don McCafferty would wind up as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams this year. So look who's the No. 1 Lion in Detroit.

Everybody figured Chuck Fairbanks was nicely snuggled in as head coach of college football's Oklahoma Sooners. So look who's in New England as a million-dollar Patriot.

And look who's in Florida. It's Baltimore General Manager Joe Thomas—reportedly trying to lure Miami assistant coach Howard Schnellenberger away from the Dolphins to take over the reins of the Colts.

And look whose trying to get out of Los Angeles. It's quarterback Roman Gabriel, who says he wants to be traded to the Washington Redskins, now that the Rams have acquired John Hadl from the San Diego Chargers.

A year ago, the Rams and Colts in effect swapped owners—Carroll Rosenbloom taking over in Los Angeles and Robert Irsay doing the same in Baltimore. And early in the National Football League season, McCafferty, the Colts' head coach, considered one of Rosenbloom's favorites when he'd been in Baltimore, was fired.

Then, when the Rams slumped under the coaching of Tommy Prothro, the guess was that Prothro would soon be out of a job and McCafferty would be in it. The guess was half right.

Prothro was fired earlier in the week—but at the same time, Rosenbloom picked former Detroit offensive line coach Chuck Knox as his successor. Knox and the rest of the Lions' assistant coaches had been fired after Head Coach Joe Schmidt quit on Jan. 12.

That left McCafferty still without a job—until Friday, when he got Schmidt's. He signed a three-year contract for an undisclosed sum.

Lions' owner William Clay Ford said the 51-year-old McCafferty "was my first choice" of about a dozen candidates. He wouldn't name the others who might have gotten the job which brought Schmidt a reported $70,000 last year.

If the reports are true, Fairbanks will be getting about $200,000 for each of his five years in the contract he signed Friday with New England—perhaps five times what he was making at Oklahoma.

The contract, Fairbanks said, is "long enough that if I can't get the job done, then something's wrong." The job? "The goal, of course, is to win the Super Bowl," he explained

Squires trounce Hawks, 67-48

DE PERE — The state's 10th ranked team, De Pere Abbot Pennings, showed why it is leading the Fox Valley Christian Conference as the Squires stung Appleton Xavier, 67-48, in the Van Dyke Gym here Friday night.

The victors boosted their FVCC slate to 13-0 and their overall record to 13-1. Xavier's FVCC log fell to 10-3 and its overall mark slipped to 11-4 as a league winning streak ended at eight games.

The Hawks' downfall came from a cold evening at the charity stripe — unusual for Xavier — as the Hawks missed 11 of 27 free throws. XHS also committed many turnovers.

Pennings, in stretching its advantage over second place Xavier to three games, pulled away from a slim 21-18 advantage in the second quarter.

Phil Arant connected on a short jump shot at the 1:52 juncture of the quarter to widen the Squires' margin to 23-18. But, instead of Xavier getting the ball out of bounds after Arant's score, a double foul was called — which resulted in a jump ball at the center circle. Pennings controlled the tip, and Todd Danen came downcourt to score, and the Squires suddenly held a 25-18 lead.

After Xavier's Joe Schneider missed a free shot, Pennings got the rebound and stalled the clock down until Dick Hendricks pumped in a short jumper at the horn, and Pennings took a 27-18 lead into the locker room.

The Hawks came out cold in the second half and Pennings mounted its advantage gradually throughout the final half.

Scoring honors went to Todd Danen, Pennings' 6-9 center, who had 23 points. But more importantly, Danen intimidated the Hawks by blocking several shots before fouling out late in the contest.

Schneider led Xavier scoring with 21 points.

Paul Gigot and Paul Deacon each added 12 points for the Squires.

Fitzpatrick and Dale Wundrow led the hosts to a 53-33 quarter advantage by tallying eight and seven markers, respectively.

The losers managed to cut the deficit to 14 at one point in the final segment, but the poised Chuter reserves quickly built the advantage back up.

Wundrow led the rebounding effort with 10 for LC, while Fitzpatrick added seven. For Marion, Kucksdorf totaled nine and Mark Meyer grabbed seven.

In the scoring department, Fitzpatrick counted 18, Wundrow added 15, Rick Vander Wyst 14, and Phil Janssen rounded out the attack with 10.

Pete Koeller scored 13 and Jeff Busch 11 for Bonduel, now 8-1. Doug Bricco scored nine for the Chiefs, 2-7.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood ran 46 points in the second half to race away from Wautoma. Wautoma (3-5) struggled to a 31-deadlock at the half before the Chargers (7-1) made their scoring thrust.

Lourdes comeback stops Foxes

By DAVE VOLKMAN

Oshkosh Lourdes overcame a sluggish first quarter to hand Fox Valley Lutheran's Foxes their fourth four-point defeat, 44-40 in the FVL gym Friday night.

The loss was the Foxes' 10th in 13 Fox Valley Christian Conference outings. The win upped the Knights' FVCC slate to a 7-6 mark.

The Knights jumped off to a 4-0 lead but the Foxes outscored the visitors, 12-2, in the last 5:00 of the quarter.

FVL probably could have run up an even more impressive first quarter score, due to the fact that the Knights' two front liners, Jim Baerwald and Mike Bartow, picked up three fouls each in the early going. However, the Foxes were hampered as they were throughout the game by turnovers.

The second stanza opened with a flurry, as Lourdes tied the score, 12-12 with three quick buckets.

FVL's Tom Hanke put the ledger at 14-12, and after the Knights had knotted it up again, the Foxes ran off eight straight points to finish off the first half with a 22-14 lead.

Lourdes came out in the second half and immediately began to chip away at the FVL lead.

John Kita, the loop's fourth leading scorer, averaging 19.7 points a game, finally put in his first two of the night, and Bartow dripped in two charity tosses to cut the deficit to four.

It stayed this way for most of the quarter, until with :05 remaining, Lourdes' Dave Hirte put in a basket from the top of the key to make the score 28-26.

The Foxes' Dave Roehl launched a shot from half-court which swished the net at the buzzer.

In the final stanza, the Knights immediately tied the score at 30-all. FVL took the lead at 32-30, on an exciting series of events which finally saw Jeff Young put the ball through the hoop.

Lourdes then grabbed the lead again on baskets by Hirte and Kita, but after two fruitless FVL breakaways, Kevin Gertsch stole the ball from Kita and put in a jumper from the free-throw line, tying the score for the sixth and final time.

The Knights took the lead for good moments later on a basket by Bartow, and upped it to four points on a shot by Baerwald. Playing with four fouls, Baerwald sparked Lourdes down the stretch with two more budkets.

FVL blew at least three breakaways in the final eight minutes.

The Foxes turned the ball over to the Knights on 17 occasions, while receiving the ball as gifts only eight times.

In the second half, FVL garnered only four rebounds, all in the fourth quarter

Top scorers for the winners were Baerwald with 12, and Kita and Bartow with eight points apiece.

Leading Foxes scorers were Young with 12 points

Menasha project give parents a "child's view"

BY ELIZABETH GALL
Post-Crescent staff writer

MENASHA—A handful of parents of pre-school age children are learning to look at the world through their child's eyes. Through a unique program, called Project Patrol, parents are learning the rules of motivation and stimulation that will make their children better learners when they get to school

A small group at Jefferson School and a larger one at Banta get together on a bi-weekly basis to discuss their children and perform tasks that will help them better understand why children behave as they do

Project Patrol got started three years ago under the direction of Dr. Thomas Bluett of the UW-Green Bay and was funded through a Title III federal grant.

According to Mrs Fran Arndt, an initiator of the Jefferson School group, Bluett wrote his project with the thought that Students who are not motivated to learn in school had been hampered in some way during their early years at home

Project Patrol, Mrs. Arndt stated, does not tell you how to raise your children Instead, it trains parents in methods of stimulating them and makes parents look at the world through their child's eyes

The Jefferson School group got started last spring and since then, Mrs Arndt said she has learned to spend more time with her children—coloring, reading, cutting and getting more involved with them.

Mrs. Arndt said that Patrol makes parents realize that they set the initial tone of life for their children and give them their attitudes and values. It makes parents realize how important the child's early environment is.

"Being a young mother, you do things and you often wonder if you did the right thing. At Patrol, you talk to other mothers and find out you aren't alone," Mrs. Arndt said.

She remarked that "for every other walk of life, there's a training, but there's none for parents." Through Patrol, parents are taught child development and learn to realize what to expect of their children. Mrs. Arndt added that Patrol "makes you aware of your child as a human being, not just a part of the household."

Mrs. Bonnie Van De Hey, one of two initiators at the Banta group, stated that since she has become involved in Patrol she has become more patient with her two pre-school age children. Patrol, she says, "gives you an idea of how a child feels and enables you to be more understanding of that child."

Mrs. Penny Kauffert, also an initiator of the Banta group, agreed that Patrol has given her more patience with her children. "You learn their point of view," she said, you learn to get down on your knees and look at the world the way a child sees it.

Mrs. Kaufert also remarked that nobody likes a bold, aggressive four-year-old. But if you stomp on a child's initiative when he's young, you may be discouraging the qualities of leadership valued in later life.

Patrol groups get films and other materials from the UW-Green Bay with monies provided by Title I. At the sessions parents may discuss mutual problems or get involved in making soapsud paintings the way a child does.

The Jefferson group has made booklets of their child's likes and dislikes and Mrs. Arndt stated that if you've got a one or two-year-old, it really made you take a good look at your child. The emphasis way to think like your child, to put yourself in his place.

Both principals, Frank Parsons at Jefferson and Ray Feit at Banta, support the program whole-heartedly. Parsons encourages more parents, mothers and fathers, to get involved with the program and pointed out that they can play an important part in making their child's learning experiences better when they get to school.

Feit stated that Patrol is "built on the idea that parents can do a lot to help children learn and be pleased with themselves." Feit also said that in Patrol, parents learn the behavioral patterns of children of various ages and gets some idea of the type of behavior to expect.

Appleton West jazz ensemble takes top honors

For the third year in a row, the Appleton High School-West Jazz Lab Ensemble took top honors at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay high school jazz festival last Saturday.

The 24 musicians, under the direction of Ivan Spangenberg, won one of the two "outstanding group" trophies and joined the UWGB Jazz Ensemble in a concert Saturday evening.

The other group to win was Wauwatosa East. A total of 20 bands participated.

Each ensemble played for 20 minutes for the clinicians. One of the three pieces played by the West ensemble was "Wichita Lineman," as arranged by John Harmon, Lawrence University Jazz Lab Ensemble director.

The West ensemble has won other honors in the past. The youths walked off with the top trophy for two years at the Appleton High School-East Jazz Festival and was named the top Wisconsin band in the Eau Claire Jazz Festival.

Sherwood, Kaukauna men plead guilty to selling amphetamines

Two 20-year-old area men arrested in relation to a July 19 drug raid in Winnebago and Outagamie counties each pleaded guilty to one count of selling amphetamines when they appeared Thursday before Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse.

Daniel J. Femal, Sherwood, has been charged with selling 1,000 "speed" pills to a state undercover agent on June 1 in Kaukauna. David J. Krueger, 156 Grant St., Kaukauna, had been charged with selling nearly 900 "speed" pills on April 4 to the same agent in Kaukauna.

Outagamie County Dist. Atty. John Ensley moved for dismissal of one count of sale of LSD against Krueger. Myse granted it. The sale, again to the same agent in Kaukauna, reportedly took place on May 8 and involved 50 LSD tablets.

Ensley said he moved for the dismissal because the cases against the two men were similar and "we wanted the sentences to balance out. Of course, the information on the LSD charge will still appear in the court's presentence investigation report."

Ensley added that in future drug cases he would not be opposed to having probation granted if the charges are not too serious, but added that he would like to see drug surveillance in relation to the defendants instituted by the Department of Social Services.

After finding the two men guilty, Myse ordered the presentence investigation, but did not set a date for sentencing

FISH-a Service to All Who are in Need

It may be hard to believe, but there are those in this city who are desperately in need of the things it takes to exist, food, financial assistance, transportation, and other necessities.

Perhaps one of the greatest needs of this minority is someone to talk to, just to hear another person's voice The minority is the area's elderly, many of whom are poor, handicapped, or merely lonely (if merely can be accepted in that context.) This article is not going to be another of the countless, monotonous dissertations on the problems of the aged so don't stop reading yet.

Luckily, there is an organization in the area, manned by a corp of hard-working volunteers, that is doing its most to fulfill a desperate need. Its name is FISH, a name of religious significance to many. This does not mean, however, that FISH is affiliated with any particular church, although they do receive some support from a few churches in the area. To the contrary, FISH is completely independent, even the individual chapters are autonomous.

FISH also is recognized by the police department, and in many instances works in conjunction with them. Miss Janet Lee Berry, Appleton, one of the chapter founders, said many organizations have given support: The Salvation Army, St. Vincent DePaul Society, Red Cross, Social Service, Pastoral Guidance Service, Appleton High School-West Key Club. Lauded for their fine work, but fated to the same anonymity is the Appleton Drop-In Center and FRIENDS — Miss Berry recommends both very highly.

After hearing the urgent need for volunteers expressed by this organization, maybe a few who read this and happen to be between bridge club meetings or other social musts, will contact this group and find out if it could use their talents. The address is FISH, 123 N. Green Bay St., Appleton, and phone is 733-6242.

FISH-People Helping Out Neighbors

In order to write this article, I interviewed Janet Lee Berry. With a vital personality, quick wit, and a steady gaze, being confined to bed seems to pose little handicap to her. She is one of the founders of the Appleton chapter of FISH which was begun here in 1967. She shares telephone work with two other women: Mrs. Agnes Seton (chief operator) and Mrs. Florence Drumm. Although she used to do shift work as an operator, she now is working the phones as more of a substitute, answering calls on holidays and when circumstances warrant. In the Appleton area, besides the aforementioned operators, FISH has a membership of over 150 volunteers, more than half of whom are aides — those who cannot work shifts, but instead provide services such as visitation, babysitting, a meal — assistance on a person-to-person basis. The remaining volunteers are scheduled and they take the same 12-hour period each month and are on call for all problems which arise during that time. The operators and scheduled volunteers are backed not only by the numerous aides, but in addition they can refer to professional people on the FISH register.

All FISH personnel attend a training meeting after they offer their services. The purpose of this meeting is not to transform them into professionals, but to remind them that they are not professionals and are not expected to fill that role. As to age — there is no maximum age limit, but they do restrict membership to 16 years of age in most cases. However, younger boys do some work for FISH, such as raking leaves.

As I mentioned before, FISH is a person-to-person organization and Miss Berry attributes much of their membership to this fact. She also points out that the more informal structure (there are no mandatory meetings after the training meeting) appeals to many. All names and phone numbers of members are strictly confidential.

The volunteers in this area belong, as a unit, to an international organization which was begun in England in 1961, later spread to other countries, including the U. S., until it reached 2,000 chapters here. Unlike other such organizations, there is no FISH headquarters, and each chapter is independent, even to the extent of lacking a local office.

FISH serves in three capacities: Emergency, long-term (regular visitation, etc. . .) and referral. Within these capacities they serve three needs: financial — getting help for welfare and Social Security cases; helping the physically handicapped; and psychological problems — which includes the elderly and lonely. Miss Berry said, "We may be their only contact with the world for a month. They need to talk."

About three-fourths of all calls FISH receives are requests for transportation from the elderly, the poor, the handicapped. Most of this is for rides to doctors' offices, hospitals, bus depots — public accesses. This year they have already passed the 2,000 ride mark. The majority of the remaining calls are concerned with referral to doctors, etc.

Support comes in many forms. Token donations from the recipients of their aid provide almost a third of the total FISH operating budget of $500-$600. Accepting these donations helps those they serve to keep their pride. Nearly all the residual funds come from private donors. Churches provide some assistance. In fact, many of the members hear of FISH through their churches. Money has not been their biggest problem, however — people has. They have a desperate need for volunteers in all capacities. Some churches have gotten involved, but, "not as many as I would like to see from a city the size of Appleton." Nor, may I add, as wealthy as Appleton.

Publicity has been partially donated, on occasion, by newspapers.★

These shoes were made for walking

Ugly Feet?

Ugly feet?

Are you one of those problem people who were blessed with big feet? Yes, I said blessed. Today's fashions require shoes as a main accessory. The bigger your feet, the more you are able to see your shoes!

Today, shoes are manufactured with the big cork, wooden, rubber or leather soles. I mean BIG soles, too. The wedgie is one of the most popular. It has the heel and sole in one piece, Chinese style.

No longer does the tall girl have to worry about being tall. Her girlfriends are all wearing super big heels that compensate for the tallness.

It gives a girl a much leggier look for all those male chauvinist pigs that take a second look at a nice set of long legs.

A person can get away with almost any type of foot apparel. Grub shoes that are very comfortable and the more dressy shoe for an occasional big hot date both belong in the wardrobe.

Shoes are making a return in history. The once ugly saddle shoe that nobody in their right mind would wear are right back in style. They even are comfortable and good for a growing size 9 foot. Manufacturers have made ready stained saddles in different colors and styles.

Shoes have been worn for centuries to protect feet from the elements as well as to accent that beautiful outfit. Clogs originating in the Scandinavian countries are perfect for exercising tired worn out feet.

Whats and Whys of Foster Homes

BY STEVEN KING

There is a shortage of homes in Outagamie County Because of this, some children go without — without a decent home, food and clothing. There is an answer to this problem though. That answer is foster homes. People may not be familiar with foster homes or what the main purpose of them is

The need for foster homes is becoming increasingly more demanding in Outagamie County.

But not everyone knows what a foster home is. What exactly are they? What does it take to be a foster parent? What is required of a foster parent?

A foster home is a place for children without a home of their own for one reason or another The children may range in age from six months to a high school senior The foster home is run by ordinary people like yourself

To date there are approximately 100 foster homes in Outagamie County, according to the county department of social services

These, of course are not all filled The reason for this is because foster homes are registered according to age, sex and the number of foster homes for adolescents, according to Earl Peppard, a county social worker.

Currently there are three children needing foster homes These all are teenagers.

There are various reasons why children go to foster homes. Usually the real reason stems from difficulties with the parents who may be unresponsive to the child's needs and problems, or else may be separated or divorced. Usually, though, it is as much a problem, or more, of the parents as it is of the child.

The present foster home situation can be summed up simply as inadequate. There are always enough foster homes for infants but seldom are there enough for teenagers. This is where the problem lies.

The cost for foster parents is rather minimal They receive $75-$100 per month plus allowances for the child's clothing, school and personal expenses Also, many foster children in their teens have the opportunity for a government-sponsored job, so the cost of operating a foster home is no real problem

Another question which may be raised is that of what is to be expected of the foster parents. Years ago, relatively little was expected of foster parents — food, a bed and a roof over children's heads.

Now, though, more is expected of them. Foster parents are expected to help improve the child, not only house him. They are also expected to help him with his problems.

There is another foster home plan conceived rather recently — that of emergency placement. This is usually for a short period of time, not usually exceeding 30 days until a permanent foster home can be found.

If you feel you want a foster child, especially a teenager, contact Jeanne Hoch, foster care coordinator, Outagamie County Department of Social Services

We need foster homes, and we need people to run them. They're not very difficult to operate, and they're of great help to the foster child

I ought to know, I'm in one.

The conclusion of the Trade Fair will be at 5 p.m., Feb. 4. At this time, the visiting achievers will board their buses and return home.

Save Money Now

BY STEVE KING

If money seems to go faster than expected careful budgeting may help stretch that ever-shrinking dollar.

First of all, keep a record, for approximately two or three months, of all expenditures. Determine how much is spent on food, clothes, transportation and on other items. Then set up a budget in accordance with the record.

Here are some hints that may help with the budget.

1. Don't include in the budget windfall money or extra income, such as interest, dividends, gifts, a raise or other items. This money is not needed so keep getting along without it. Save it or use it for some kind of enjo /ment.

2. When making a budget estimate all items at the highest cost. This will help to prevent against pinches. Then, if there are any surpluses, save it.

3. Keep track of all expenses. It will help when income taxes are due. Some costs to keep track of are gasoline taxes, sales taxes, milage to and from doctors, dentists, hospitals, charitable contributions and interest paid on charge accounts.

4. Set up budget accounts to see clearly which categories are in the red and which are in the black This will assist more realistic budgeting next time.

5. Total all expenses considered as monthly expenses, phone bills, utilities and others, to see what they total in a year's time. The result may be amazing. This may help to cut down on expense of long distance phone calls or elimination of extension and saving by turning out lights and other unneeded items.

6. Providing allowances for children is wiser than hand-out techniques. An allowance should teach money management. If children want an advance one week take it out of next week's allowance. Don't use allowances as rewards for housework, chores or school grades. These activities should be expected of children. Don't withhold an allowance as punishment or to exert authority.

7. Pay your bills systematically once a month if possible. In a pinch, give priority to the most important bills.

8. Guard against too much check writing, it can become expensive. Stick to one checkbook per family.

9. Time withdrawals from checking accounts to keep the balance where it should be, to save on service charges.

Remember, money is a good servant but a bad master. Earning money is only part of the task. So, be careful with money and budget carefully. It will help in the long run.

What is MERM?

What do you get when you mix wax, string, glass, wood, nuts and bolts? MERM! Man's Environmental Recycling and Merchandising.

Merm is a Junior Achievement Company sponsored by Appleton Mills. There are four employes from Appleton Mills who work as advisors They answer any questions that the Junior Achievement members may have

This Junior Achievement Company produces candles and tip-ups. The candles are made by pouring melted wax into glass molds. The tip-ups also are handmade using a wood base with a two-foot steel spring attached to the base. When a fish strikes, a bright red flag attached to the end of the spring waves in the air, warning the fisherman of the strike.

The MERM Company meets every Tuesday night from 7 until 9 p.m. in the J.A. Center located above the Walgreen Drug Store, 210 W. College Ave., Appleton.

The company makes and sells their products. Individuals earn wages from 25 to 50 cents an hour, and finally liquidate the firm in the spring, having learned more in the J.A. program about today's business world.

Calumet civic group wants FHA sewer, water loans re-established

BY HAZEL THIEL
Post-Crescent correspondent

SHERWOOD — The Calumet County Civic Association (CCCA) went on record here Wednesday night endorsing re-establishment of Farmers Home Administration (FHA) grants for small communities undertaking sewer and water projects.

The group particularly wants support for the Village of Sherwood, which has been under pollution abatement orders from the state DNR for many years, and suffers from a shortage of water. Engineering plans were submitted for DNR approval recently for a lagoon type sewage treatment system and option has been taken on a well site, Village President Clarence Zahringer, told the association.

Recently the village was informed that FHA grants for sewage distribution and development and construction of treatment facilities had been terminated.

The CCCA voted to ask for support of re-establishment of the grants from Rep. William Steiger, (R-Oshkosh), and Sens. William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson.

The civic organization, composed of municipal officials and Chamber of Commerce leaders from throughout the county, also will seek a decision from the Public Service Commission (PSC) on the October hearing in Kiel for extended toll-free service from Kiel to Chilton, Elkart Lake and St. Nazianz. State Rep. Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton, will be contacted to see what can be done towards getting a decision from the state agency.

The CCCA had supported Kiel in its effort to get the extended coverage. It also has endorsed efforts from citizen groups in Stockbridge, Sherwood, Forest Junction and Hilbert, who are trying to get another hearing on the recent 40 per cent rate increase imposed on the subscribers of Stockbridge-Sherwood Telephone Company.

Zahringer reported that petitions for the new hearing were being circulated and 250 signatures had been collected in the sherwood area alone. He asked that William Hertel, legal counsel for CCCA represent the citizen group at the hearing, if one is granted. Hertel was only to represent the CCCA as a group, not the individual communities which make up the organization.
communities which make up the organization.

He cited the I-57 middle corridor endorsement as an example, where he represented CCCA and various government and Chamber of Commerce groups spoke for their communities.

In other business the CCCA voted that minutes of the meeting will be sent to all the sponsoring organizations, county clerk, and anyone of the group who requests them within one week of the meeting. At previous meetings the organization had been criticised for its lack of news coverage and distribution of its minutes particularly by the City of New Holstein. The New Holstein Association of Commerce had threatened to drop its membership if minutes were not received within one week.

The organization receives $50 membership dues from municipalities and Chambers of Commerce as well as from county funds. Groups receiving the minutes will be informed that they are "unapproved", as action on them is not taken until the next monthly meeting. Ex Secretary Ed Sohrweide, Chilton, had pointed out this was his reason for not distributing minutes earlier.

The organization also made it clear that the news media is welcome to attend its meetings. This practice also had been the subject of discussion at some previous meetings.

Membership dues in Heritage Country, an 11-county organization to promote visitors' dollars and recreational employment in northeastern Wisconsin, again was paid by CCCA. The fee of $600 a county was explained by Bill Brault, Green Bay president of the organization.

There was considrable discussion on whether the membership fee which includes, a recreational tabloid featuring all the counties, was the responsibility of the civic group or the county, or should be raised through advertising county businesses. However, the group felt that it would pay it this year, because in requesting $1,000 from the county board this expense had been mentioned.

The next meeting will be Feb. 21 at Stockbridge.

Name the schools

MANAWA — The board of education of the Little Wolf School District is sponsoring a "Name the Schools Contest."

The construction of an elementary school on the E. Fourth Street site, the new utlization of the old elementary school located on Depot Street and the use of the Symco Elementary School as a kindergarten center beginning with the 1973-74 school year prompted the contest.

Forms for submitting names for the three buildings are available at the board office at Little Wolf High School. Dr. R.G. Ames, superintendent of schools, ward citizen participation.

The persons who submit the name selected for each building will be presented an appropriate reward by the school board. The winning names will be selected by a panel of judges composed of three school board members, three school district students and three citizens.

Fair board seeks funds

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The State Fair Board agreed Friday to ask the State Building Commission to provide $800,000 to make improvements to the fairgrounds this year as the first phase of a master plan to renovate the grounds completely.

Architects say the first phase, to include a new cattle barn, two new rest room buildings, two new concession stands, a new entrance gate and ticket houses, new lighting, landscaping, utilities, and a system of signs, should be completed prior to the opening of the 1973 fair.

But the board's plans for an $18 million sports and entertainment coliseum, with its principal tenants the professional basketball Milwaukee Bucks and a proposed pro hockey franchise, continued to attract flak from City of Milwaukee officials, who fear the migration of tenants from their Arena.

At Friday's meeting, the board approved a revised master plan for redevelopment of the fairgrounds, with $18 million in borrowing authority authorized by the legislature, calling for:

—Location of the coliseum for professional sports and entertainment on land along the East-West Freeway, with parking space for about 3,800 cars.

—An historic village, including restaurant, shops and meetings rooms, at the southeast corner of the fairgrounds.

—New agricultural buildings at the north end of the grounds linked by two malls.

—An aerial skyride between the north and south ends of the grounds.

—An infield race track parking area for 2,400 cars with entry from two tunnels.

—A building housing consumer products display areas, possibly with a restaurant, shops and booths open all year.

A consultant's report submitted to the board Friday called for a joint city-county-state authority to operate Milwaukee County Stadium, the Milwaukee Auditorium and Arena, the city's new convention center (MECCA), and the fair park coliseum.

The report, by Development Research Associates of New York, projected a level of net income from the coliseum that would make construction and maintenance possible without tax money.

"Perhaps at this point Milwaukee is a little short of being a two-arena town," an official of the consulting firm said.

"A joint authority, coordinating the operations of all of these facilities, could optimize potential of each, minimize overlap and enhance the financial performance of all," the report said.

William Carey, fiscal coordinator for the city, said enabling legislation from the legislature would probably be required for creation of a joint authority to operate all the facilities.

Carey pointed to tentative city plans to expand the Arena by 2,240 seats, renovate the auditorium, and complete construction of MECCA, and predicted the Bucks would stay in downtown Milwaukee.

"The coliseum is destined to be a complete financial failure with the taxpayers of Wisconsin having to make up the difference" unless both the Bucks and a hockey team are signed to long-term leases, Carey said.

But William Alverson, Bucks' president, said the club was more interested in a new facility than in continuing its lease in an expanded Milwaukee Arena.

"With a new facility that is primarily dependent on professional sports for its income, the scheduling conflicts would be much less than what we are faced with today," Alverson said.

Van Susteren denies breach of court ethics

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

MADISON — The Wisconsin Supreme Court's judical commission went into closed session Friday morning after hearing Outagamie County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren deny charges that having his brother Joseph as public administrator violates the judical ethics code.

Van Susteren, who said Friday he no longer will permit his brother to receive "special fees," asked that the ethics question be shifted from the commission to the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

If the commission rules against him, Van Susteren said, he will appeal to the Supreme Court anyway.

Chairman Ward Rector said the nine commissioners went into closed session after the formal hearing to discuss other business, but he admitted the Van Susteren issue probably also would be taken up.

Rector said the commission's ruling probably would be in writing. He could not predict when a ruling would be made or if the matter would instead be referred to the Supreme Court.

The worst the commission can do is censure Van Susteren if it finds he violated the ethics code.

Van Susteren appeared alone at the hearing. It is the year-old commission's first formal hearing and proceedings were similar to those in a court room. Commissioners most of them judges and attorneys. (Circuit Judge William Crane of Oshkosh is a commissioner) voted to ban cameras and tape recorders from the hearing rooms and adjacent corridors.

Madison attorney Warren Resh, a retired assistant state attorney general, acting as legal counsel for the commisson, argued that by Van Susteren approving the payment of fees, especially extra fees, to Joseph there was financial interest involved.

Resh had commission executive Secretary George Alderson review state Department of Revenue records showing what Joseph was paid in special fees (for difficult cases) for 1966 through August of 1972. They ranged from a low of $1,970 in 1966 to a high of $16,790 in 1970.

Alderson also testified as to the percentages between the special fees and the total fees Joseph was paid as public administrator.

Breaking them down by months, the percentages range from a low of 9 per cent to a high of 37 per cent.

Resh emphasized that the figures were represented only to strengthen his contention that a financial interest existed between the brothers. He said the commission has no evidence of corruption, kickbacks or even complaints by lawyers. And, Resh continued, there was no contention that the fees authorized for Joseph were excessive.

Van Susteren repeated earlier written and oral contentions that his brother did not appear in his court as an attorney either formally or informally.

However, Van Susteren publicly stated for the first time that under provisions of the revised (May of 1972) legislation providing for public administrator fees, he no longer will authorize the payment of special fees to Joseph.

The schedule permits a guaranteed $5 fee for public administrator even where no inheritance tax is involved, 5 per cent of the tax on the first $500 on an estate and one per cent of the tax over $500. Extra fees are allowed for difficult cases, Van Susteren said, but he now interprets difficult cases as those which involve issues that might have to be decided in his court. He would not permit Joseph to be a party to a case in his court, he said.

Van Susteren said he has not allowed any special fees for Joseph in probate cases brought since the law was changed last May.

Resh told Van Susteren that everything possible must be done to make the public feel all is above board in the judiciary. The ethics code is aimed at practices that could cast disrepute on the court, he said. This case, he explained, is one where even though there may be no wrong doing, the public could attach implications.

Resh also argued that a satisfactory solution cannot be achieved simply by Van Susteren saying he no longer will authorize payment of special fees for Joseph.

Van Susteren urged the commission not to be swayed by "wild allegations" of the public or the press. "You'll be harassed all during the life of this commission by those seeking to make exciting news," he advised.

He asked the commission to weigh the fact that he has easily won judicial election two times while his brother has been public administrator. Van Susteren now is a candidate for Circuit Court judge.

Reporting of rape urged

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The attorney general's office will propose legislation soon involving rapes and payments to victims of violent crimes.

Clarke Caywood, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren's legislative liaison director, talked about the bills and sought reaction Friday from prosecutors attending the Wisconsin District Attorneys Association mid-winter conference at the Beaumont Motor Inn.

Caywood noted that the FBI has called rape "the most under-reported crime in the U.S."

He said his office is trying to work out legislation covering both the language of the rape law and means of encouraging victims to report assaults.

Rape is defined as intercourse by force and against the victim's will with the attacker overcoming her utmost resistance by physical violence or threat of bodily harm.

The term "utmost resistance" may be taken too literally in some cases, Caywood explained. A woman shouldn't have to fight back to the extent she jeopardizes her life.

Several prosecutors indicated varying reactions from juries in interpreting the present rape law wording. Consideration is being given to a Michigan model code which talks of rape in terms of "by forcible compulsion" and "while avoiding risk of injury, death or injury to another person."

Caywood also suggested prosecutors work with local police to assure the most diplomatic handling of rape victims. In some instances women have been reluctant to press charges after less than sympathetic initial experiences with police officers.

The prosecutors also were told to publicize Wisconsin's unique law which prohibits the use of a rape victim's name by the news media. Future legislation also may consider a mandatory closed preliminary hearing in rape cases, but most of the prosecutors agreed the trial would have to remain open to the public.

In the area of crime victim compensation, Caywood said his office will recommend payments up to $10,000 to victims of violent crime or persons injured attempting to prevent a crime. A special board would be established to administer these payments.

Such victim compensation programs already are operating in four states and federal legislation on the issue is pending.

The prosecutors also heard a review of some current juvenile court problems by a panel of three judges.

Rock County Judge Sverre Roang told the district attorneys to be ready for increasing pressure from the public to seek waiver of 16 and 17 year olds from juvenile to adult criminal court because of the effects of the new age of majority law.

The new law now stops all juvenile court jurisdiction over a youth at the age of 16. If a boy commits a serious crime only a few weeks prior to his 18 birthday, he could face on a few days incarceration, a "mere slap on the wrist" before he would have to be set free.

Roang said he knew of one instance where a boy was sent to Wales only to be released because of his 18th birthday after staying only three days.

The waiver to criminal court on criminal charges is the only answer to this problem, but Wisconsin's current waiver procedures under the 1955 Children's Code are being questioned in light of recent Supreme Court decisions setting up strict guidelines for granting of waivers.

A Milwaukee County court recently ruled state waiver laws unconstitutional on grounds they were too broad and lacked guidelines. Michigan was forced to revise its juvenile waiver laws last year after existing rules were overturned by the high courts on similar grounds.

A revised Children's Code was passed by the state Senate last term but never was acted on in the Assembly. A similar measure has been introduced again with the backing of the Council of Juvenile Court Judges and the state Judicial Council which would include the needed constitutional guarantees and guidelines covering waivers.

"This was lost in the shuffle last session, but we hope we can get it through this time," the judge said.

Polk County Judge Charles Madsen and Washington County Judge J. Tom Merriam told the prosecutors they would be initiating most of the requests for waivers. They explained some of the technical points required in recent court rulings on this question. They suggested that reasons for requested waivers be specific and well documented.

"You can expect increasing pressure for waivers, especially in cases the public is uptight about," Roang told the prosecutors, but he also urged them to remember that the welfare and rehabilitation of the child is still the primary goal of the juvenile court.

Some aid in solving the 18-year-old quandary also could come from proposed legislation which would extend juvenile court jurisdiction to age 19, thus assuring at least one year of supervision to youths found delinquent before age 18.

Openings available in snowmobiling course

CLINTONVILLE — There still are some openings in the second class session of Feb. 12-17 for the snowmobile safety training.

Parents may contact Bud Carlson, director of parks and recreation, to register their child.

Registration forms and class information sheets will then be mailed to students.

Primary slated in Hortonville for school posts

HORTONVILLE — A primary will be held March 6 to determine the candidates for the board of education post that represents the towns of Greenville and Grand Chute.

Three candidates have filed declarations of intent to seek the office now held by Merlin Plamann, a Greenville farmer.

Plamann is seeking re-election, to another three-year term, and will be opposed in the primary by Peter Fourness, of route 1, Appleton, pharmacist, and Robert Machotka, of 118 Ridgeway Drive, Greenville, who is employed at the Outagamie County Hospital.

The March primary will determine the two candidates for the April 3 election.

Two persons will oppose each other for the post representing the Village of Hortonville and the Town of Liberty. The post will be vacated Feb. 1 by Luther Huebner, the current board president.

Sherman Waite, a supervisor at the Wisconsin Telephone Co. in Appleton was recently appointed to fill the post until June 30. Waite's bid for the one year left on Huebner's term will be opposed by Mrs. Jean Meads, 763 W. Main St., the wife of a local veterinarian.

Floyd Meyer, a farmer who represents the Town of Center, will be unopposed in his bid for a three-year term.

City to help seek disposal site

Appleton development officials agreed to try to help Outagamie County find a site for solid waste processing, but cast doubt on the county's request for space in the city's Northeast Industrial Park.

Members of the city council's commerce and industrial development committee told Supv. Joseph DeBruin Thursday that the planned industrial park zoning restrictions may rule out a waste handling facility there.

DeBruin explained that the county board zoning committee which he chairs has picked the industrial park as the most likely site because of its central location. But he told the committee that any site within a half-mile of the park would do.

The council committee agreed to meet soon with DeBruin's committee and the city plan commission to weigh merits of various sites in the area. Appleton Public Works Director Robert Miller was instructed to provide cost estimates for extending sewer and water to the sites.

The committee also was skeptical of DeBruin's contention that the waste handling facility, at present expected to be an Allis Chalmers shredder, should be located near a railroad. The county committee hopes that future developments will make the shredder a producer of recyclable materials, including metals and paper fibers. DeBruin said the railroad may be necessary to ship the materials.

Miller calculated the anticipated output of the site, however, and said nearness to a truck route should be adequate. Ald. Roy Pointer (14th), chairman of the council committee, said even if large volumes of reusable paper fibers are produced, the market would probably be chiefly local and wouldn't need rail facilities.

The planned industrial park restrictions include a limitation to operations generating "very little truck traffic," and a list of types of industrial plants allowed. A solid waste shredder is not one of them, nor is an incinerator which has been pushed as an alternate processing method.

But Miller found a clause in the ordinance that he said seems to allow expansion of the list of permitted uses if the new uses are compatible with the others. Planning Director Jack Hetu and some committee members, however, were uncertain of Miller's interpretation.

The committee and DeBruin rejected the suggestion of Donald Stone, manager of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce, to consider a site southwest of Appleton that would be convenient for Neenah-Menasha and other Winnebago County waste haulers.

DeBruin said political tieups created by crossing the county line would hopelessly ensnare efforts at prompt startup of an Outagamie County facility. Stone said he was concerned with having the county fall in line with recommendations of the governor's study committee on recycling, which favors 10 regional centers.

DeBruin told Stone that county officials have written assurance from the state that the county's present plans are compatible with the regional recycling center proposals.

Committee members, on Pointer's urging, cautiously placed in their minutes an agreement to help the county with selection of a "solid waste processing site." Pointer urged avoiding use of the term, "shredder", even though that is generally understood to be the type of facility being discussed. Pointer said he didn't want his committee to become embroiled in the shredder-versus-incinerator controversy.

The Rev. Eugene Gaureke will officiate and burial will be at Lakeside cemetery. Visitation will be from 3 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

He served as president and chairman of the board until he retired in November, 1971.

He attended Milwaukee County Medical College, now Marquette University, and became a registered pharmacist in 1908. His first job as pharmacist was with Truesdell Pharmacy, Waupaca, and he bought the store in 1909.

King home to raze old living hall

MADISON — Marston Hall at the Grand Army Home for Veterans at King will probably be razed because it is unsuitable for any use, according to Director John Moses of the sate department of veterans affairs.

Moses commented on a recommendation by the legislature's state institution visiting committee, led by Rep. Cletus Vanderperren, D., Green Bay, that this department remodel the old structure to make it suitable for the housing of some of the veterans who are residents of the domiciliary institution.

The structure has been idle since the completion of a new nursing care building at the institutional several years ago.

Moses said that his agency had retained a recognized firm of experts to appraise the old building for potential uses and that its findings held that it would be unsafe for human habitation and that another use, as for storage, would be excessively expensive.

Warren warns against lenient treatment of crime, criminals

GREEN BAY — Atty. Gen. Robert Warren expressed concern Thursday that recommendations from governmental task forces in the criminal justice field do not reflect the wishes of the majority of people in this nation.

Warren, speaking to the midwinter conference of the Wisconsin District Attorneys Association at the Beaumont Motor Inn, urged the prosecutors to use their influence to determine if proposals in the criminal justice field are realistic and reflect what the people really want.

Calling the situation a "perplexing dichotomy," Warren cited recent Gallup polls which indicate that 51 per cent of Americans feel crime is the No. 1 problem in this country and that there has been an increase in crime in the past year, and that 75 per cent feel the courts do not treat criminals harshly enough.

In 1949, Warren noted, only 4 per cent of the people viewed crime as our most serious problem. Today, one of three persons living in large urban areas have been the victim of a mugging, robbery or loss of property in the last 12 months. Support for capital punishment, he said, is the highest in 20 years in spite of a Supreme Court ruling abolishing the death penalty.

The response of government to public concern over crime, Warren said, has been the task force study approach which involved studies costing $865,000 in recent years.

The most notable of these has been the task force on offender rehabilitation which recommended the closing of all prisons by 1975, a suggestion Warren categorized as "highly unrealistic."

But Warren warned that this task force made other less publicized suggestions including making probation a matter of right, making parole a matter of right with the parole board having a show cause for not granting a parole, giving a drug defendant a choice of criminal or medical treatment, and limiting sentences to five years unless a court ruled the defendant dangerous.

"These were written to satisfy the offender. This would seem to oppose the will of the people," Warren charged.

The attorney general said he suspected that many of these "oddball" recommendations are coming from task force staffers who are highly idealistic but inexperienced.

"Enforcing the law will be an increasingly frustrating job if the Legislature follows this lenient route," Warren warned the prosecutors. "Put these idealistic proposals up against your everyday experiences in the courtroom and see if they are realistic."

Warren urged the District Attorneys Association to be more active and to "make sure the laws passed under that dome down in Madison really reflect the will of the people."

Prosecutors oppose shield law

Post-Crescent News Service

The Wisconsin District Attorneys Association went on record Friday opposing state legislation which would permit newsmen to refuse to reveal their sources of information.

The prosecutors, meeting in a mid winter conference at the Beaumont Motor Inn, unanimously passed a resolution calling proposed news shield legislation "hasty and imprudent."

The resolution indicated that the First Amendment provides sufficient protection of freedom of the press, and that further protective legislation would extend to members of the news media the same privilege now enjoyed by clergymen and attorneys to refuse information of criminal matters when such information is of a privileged nature.

The news shield law question has received increasing attention in recent months with newsmen in several states being sentenced to jail for contempt of court for refusing to reveal sources of information they printed. Gov. Patrick Lucey has indicated his support for a shield law in Wisconsin.

The association also passed a resolution asking an improved professional status of the job of prosecutor, through increased salaries and staffs.

The resolution noted a one-third turnover in incumbent district attorneys and suggested salaries be raised to a "competitive level" in the legal field.

There was some discussion among the prosecutors as to what such a level would be, but it was agreed a study committee could work out specifics in the future.

Association President Robert Kaufmann of Washington County called the resolution the most important business to come out of the three-day conference. "We may be tooting our own horn, but somebody has to turn the spotlight on this problem," he noted.

The prosecutors also agreed to support the Council of Juvenile Court Judges in seeking passage of a revised Children's Code covering juvenile court operations. Recent Supreme Court rulings and the new age of majority law have cast doubts on the validity of some sections of the present code which has been in force since 1955.

Approval was also given to supporting a State Judicial Council legislative bill to correct defects in the Uniform Traffic Code which went into effect last October.

Eau Claire County Dist. Atty. Lawrence Durning was named association president, succeeding Kaufmann.

Conflict over abortion issue rolls on in religious circles

By GOERGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Despite the U.S. Supreme Court decision removing legal restrictions on early abortions, the question of their morality still remains dynamite in American religious convictions

It is not simply a difference between religious grups, but runs explosively through all of them. Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic

The official position of many Protestant denominations, along with that of the Roman Catholic Church, is strongly antiabortion, despite exceptions of some theologians in both groups and some Protestant bodies

Eastern Orthodox churches and orthodox Judaism also sharply oppose abortion, while reform and conservative Judiasm have favored easing laws against it

So sharp and sensitive are the differences over the matter that a cooperative organization of most major Protestant and Orthodox bodies, the National Council of Churches, has been unable — in four years of trying — to formulate a modern stand on it

"The new permissiveness of the law confronts the churches with a greater, more urgent responsibility than before," Dr R H Edwin Espy, general secretary of the Council, said of the high court ruling

"With the legal restraints removed, it is more essential that the religious dimensions be brought to bear to help people make a responsible decision, not only the pregnant woman, but doctors and all those involved"

Other religious leaders also said the court decision, although striking out legal barriers to abortions in the first three months, does not resolve the religious-ethical issue

This simply is left up to the individuals, their consciences and the influence of their religious guides.

"One trusts in the decency and good sense of the American people not to let an illogical court decision dicate to them on morality and human life," said John Cardinal Krol, preisdent of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

While the matter now is left to individual choice, the conflict over it rolls on in religious circles, and among ethicists in biological sciences.

"Changing of laws does not change people's convictions about a practice," says Methodist theologian J. Robert Nelson, of Boston University.

The question has produced one of the keenest moral battles of the century. In numerous Protestant and Jewish bodies, it has brought about revisions of their former antiabortion stands.

At the heart of the struggle has been question of just when a human life begins. 3

Judeo-Christianity, emphasizing the sacred worth of each person, originally held that life began at conception and that a developing fetus thus constituted life as precious as after birth.

Modern genetics reinforced this view, contends Protestant moral theologian Paul Ramsey of Princeton University. "Genetics teaches us that we were from the beginning what we essentially still are in every cell."

Early Christianity and Judaism condemned abortion along with infanticide, both of which were permitted in ancient pagan societies.

But in modern times, amid rising concern for population control and women's rights, numerous Protestant groups have urged removal of legal prohibitions on abortion, leaving it to individual choice in early stages.

This position, taken by the Supreme Court, has been officially endorsed by the United Church of Christ, the United Presbyterian Church, the Lutheran Church in America and the United Mthodist Church.

Other Protestants insist abortion be limited to cases endangering the mother's life or in cases of rape, incest or fetal deformity. Versions of this position have taken by Southern Baptists, the Episcopal Church, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the National Association of Evangelicals and the National Baptist Convention, a black denomination.

Blacks and other minorities in the churches generally have fought liberalized abortion policies, calling them genocidal.

Lutheran institution enrollment drops in 1972

NEW YORK — Enrollment of full time, regular students in Lutheran seminaries four-year colleges dropped slightly in 1972, according to statistics gathered by the Lutheran Council in the USA.

A total of 3,191 students are enrolled in the bachelor of divinity or master of divinity programs at 20 Lutheran seminaries in the U.S. and Canada.

That figure reflects a decrease from the 1971 total of 3,419. The total of all students — including those in graduate programs, summer school courses, and other programs — is 4,379, an increase of 89 over the previous year.

Lutheran four-year colleges enrolled a total of 81,698 students, up about 2 per cent from last year's total of 79,966. However, the Lutheran Council report showed that the number of full-time undergraduates at the 36 schools dropped to 51,280, down 823 or about 1.5 per cent from the previous year.

Adding the enrollment from Concordia College in Bronxville, N.Y.—a two year school which became a four-year college in 1972 — brings the total of students in four-year colleges to 52,103.

Enrollment at 20 Lutheran junior colleges showed a decline of 52 students to 5,399.

The largest increases at four-year colleges were at Capital University in Columbus (up 118), Augsburg College in Minneapolis (up 104), Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill., (up 86), and St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. (up 85).

A total of 117 women were enrolled at Lutheran seminaries, according to the Lutheran Council report. Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, reported nine women students; Lutheran Seminary in Gettysburg, Pa., 18; Luther Seminary in St. Paul, 16; Lutheran Southern Seminary in Columbia, S.C., two; the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, 17; Hamma School of Theology in Springfield, Ohio, 14; Philadelphia Seminary, 11; and Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, 12.

The Lutheran Council survey also reported that Lutheran high schools enroll a total of 18,258 students, some 238 more than last year's total. Among the 54 Lutheran high schools, one closed (Concordia in Seward, Neb.) and one was opened (St. John's, Ocala, Fla.). Both are schools affiliated with the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Jesuits to close 2 of 5 seminaries

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Jesuits will no longer train priests at two of the five seminaries the order operates in this country, it has been announced.

The two being dropped are Woodstock College in New York City, the order's oldest and largest seminary in the U.S., and the St. Louis University School of Theology.

Declining enrollment, rising costs and a desire for national rather than local sponsorship of seminaries were cited as reasons.

The step is part of a consolidation which makes the remaining three seminaries the responsibility of all American Jesuits through the Jesuit Conference of Provincials, which has an office here.

The three surviving seminaries are the Jesuit School of Theology at Berkeley,Calif.; Bellarmine School of Theology, Chicago, and the Weston School of Theology, Cambridge, Mass.

Jesuit spokesmen said the St. Louis school would remain open under the sponsorship of the university for training non-Jesuit seminarians. However, the future of Woodstock was described as "uncertain."

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Try chicken, nuts or fish for more protein

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I suspected from reading your column that I had low blood sugar. My doctor said I did and told me to "eat protein at every meal."

I have tried to do so and it has helped but the problem is that protein is expensive and getting more so every day. I've always loved eggs, cheese and even hamburger, but I can hardly stand to eat them any more.

I hear you can buy protein by the pill. Would they be helpful for low blood sugar or am I being foolish to hope for relief in such an easy way?

But thanks for leading me to realization of my problem. I no longer have screaming rages or black out so often.—S.B.

I agree that protein is an expensive food item—yet protein is the essential item in a diet to combat low blood sugar, since it releases blood sugar slowly rather than in a sudden rush.

But I think you may be overlooking some useful sources of protein that are not as costly as steaks and chops.

You list only eggs, cheese and hamburger—all of which are, of course, rich protein sources. Costwise, eggs are the least expensive form of protein considering the amount you get for the money. There are ways to use eggs other than the familiar boiled, scrambled or fried.

There are many forms of omelets, adding a small amount of ham or cheese or even a few mushrooms for a different flavor. Or you can make western or Spanish omelets. And doubtless experts with the skillet can tell you other ways of making eggs different.

How about creamed and sliced hard boiled eggs on toast? Or an egg salad sandwich? Such things can help, I trust. Oh, and various casserole dishes that can include egg.

Surprisingly, you make no mention of poultry—and even if you live alone and are cooking for one, chicken can be bought in small pieces. So there's an inexpensive escape from too much eggs-cheese-hamburger.
hamburger.

And fish. They're rich in protein, and there are many forms that don't cost as much as, say, Dover sole. By all means explore the different kinds of fish that still are available at reasonable cost. And a can of sardines now and then for a quite different flavor.

Milk can be fortified by adding powdered milk to it; to increase the protein value. Nuts are high in protein, and not all of them are expensive. The peanut is a rugged, dependable item.

You might give a thought to some of the supplemental feeding preparations, powdered or liquid, that have substantial protein.

But as to a pill to take the place of protein foods, one pill isn't going to give you much. It will take a lot of pills—and I suggest that you take a hard look at the cost, if you are thinking of taking a lot of the pills.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Because my 4-year-old daughter grinds her teeth while sleeping, my family is trying to tell me she has worms. I consider this an old wives' tale but wonder if you could clear up some of the myths surrounding worms.—Mrs. S.B.

Which myths do you have in mind?

The irritation of pinworms happens to be one of a variety of causes of grinding the teeth, but far from the only one. Haven't you reported this to your pediatrician?

Note to Mrs. D.K.: I would take with a grain of salt stories that house plants "cause cancer." But such stories keep cropping up without any foundation.

Urge release of students for religion classes

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Seven members of the Wisconsin legislature representing both major political parties and diverse religious affiliations are leading a movement to write a Wisconsin law authorizing the release of public school pupils for religious instruction outside the schools.

The effort is to provide statutory mechanics in the spirit of an amendment to the state constitution that opened the way for such legislation when it was ratified in a popular referendum a year ago.

The enactment of the newly introduced bill will extend the authority to local school boards to make such released time arrangements at their option and according to their view of the wishes of their constituents.

The bill would provide that a pupil may be absent from public school classes for purposes of such outside religious instruction not less than one hour and not more than three hours.

Any student absent from the public school for the purpose of religious instruction who fails to attend such instruction, the bill provides, may lose the privilege of released time.

Rep. James Azim, as the first named author, is regarded as the chief sponsor of the measure.

The popular vote on the constitutional change in April of 1972 was comparatively close, with 595,075 persons supporting it, and 585,511 against. But the backers of the legislation believe that the voting record represents a reasonable mandate, nevertheless.

Appeals denied in Dean case

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — Thirty motions for retrial in the case of convicted murderer Douglas Dean were denied today by Sheboygan County Judge John G. Buchen.

Dean was convicted in November of 1971 in the slayings earlier that year of his mother and the mother and three brothers of a girl friend. He was sentenced to five consecutive life terms.

Dean's attorney, William Coffey of Milwaukee, said the prosecution used prejudicial methods to obtain the convictions.

"Justice has not miscarried in this case," said Judge Buchen in commenting on his denial of the motions. He said there was no reason for a new trial except the hope for a new verdict.

Diocese board raises teaching nuns salaries

Little CHUTE — The Catholic Diocese Board of Education Tuesday raised the salaries of teaching nuns from $2,750 to $3,000 for the 1973-74 school year, and increased medical insurance benefits to a flat $200.

The board acted on the advice of Diocese School Supt. Rev. Mark Schommer, who had surveyed the religious communities and staff houses in the diocese about their yearly salary requirements.

Schommer said that the $4,135 salary recommended by the Leadership Conference of Religious Women in Wisconsin would be too drastic an increase for most parish budgets next year. About 60 per cent of the teaching sisters in the diocese belong to either the Manitowoc or Bay Settlement Franciscans, and these orders have lower expenses than the $2,750 paid this year, Schommer said. He said that the $4,135 level was a statewide average of expenses that reflected the cost of living in urban areas.

As a matter of policy, the diocesan board sets the salaries of teaching nuns, to prevent competitive bargaining among individual parishes and orders.

The board also considered a proposed policy to make the whole diocese serve as the fiscal base for parochial schools and other education programs, within the next five years. The Rev. Benjamin Makin, president of the board, said he had had no response to the proposal since it was introduced Dec. 19. Essentially, the policy would channel money from the Diocesan Services Appeal into educational program that are now financied locally.

The idea is somewhat controversial in the northern part of the diocese, because that area does not have a Catholic high school. Board member Raymond Clouthier, De Pere, said, "In my travels around the diocese in the last three years, whenever the DDA comes up in relation to high schools in the rural areas, it's just like walking into a blast furnace."

The idea was tabled, because board members have not talked yet with the services appeal advisory board.

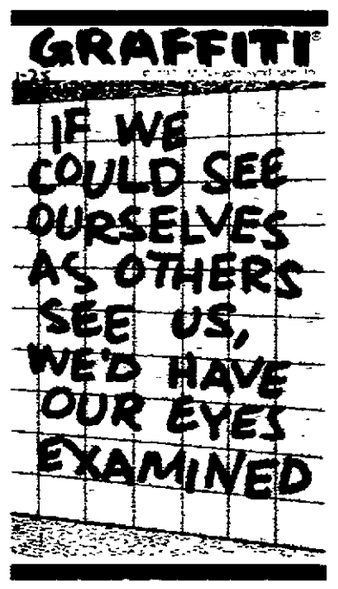

One extra source of funds for the secondary schools will come from a telethon Feb. 4 on WLUK-TV, Green Bay. The telethon was organized by St. Mary Springs High School, Fond du Lac, and each of the high schools in the Green Bay diocese will have 15 minutes.

Oregon now permits acupuncture practice

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Acupuncture may be practiced in Oregon by licensed physicians and persons licensed in other healing arts, including dentistry and podiatry, Atty. Gen. Lee Johnson has ruled.

Johnson said a chiropractic or naturopathic physician may use acupuncture for anesthetic purposes for minor surgery but not for treatment.

Acupuncture is a method of relieving pain and treating certain ailments by inserting needles into the body at specified points.

Public to be kept at distance from POWs

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Americans who have waited to see Vietnam prisoners of war return to home soil may not see much when it actually happens.

Military officials who have been preparing "Operation Homecoming" for months said Friday they plan to keep the public, newsmen and photographers at a distance from the freed war prisoners who will be brought here.

En route from Vietnam to one of 31 military hospitals near their homes, the POWs will stop at this sprawling air base 50 miles northeast of San Francisco for varying lengths of time. The first are expected within two weeks.

Newsmen were shown Friday how the POWs will be taken from the giant C141 medical evacuation jets that will bring them home from Communist captivity.

But the Air Force said the public and newsmen are to be kept behind barriers about 50 yards away.

All reunions between the former prisoners and their families will be private, Lt. Col. William Reslie said.

He said no interviews will be allowed unless the POW informs the military he would like to give an interview and it is then cleared with a medical officer and an intelligence officer.

Some ex-prisoners may be loaded directly from the returning C141s into planes that will ferry them to other military hospitals across the country, Reslie added.

Ex-prisoners who will stay at Travis will be kept in private rooms at David Grant Hospital, the base hospital, he said.

Reslie said he has orders from the Pentagon not to discuss further details of Travis preparation.

"We don't want to make it a circus," he said, adding that the military wants to keep the homecoming low-key.

He said there will be no bands, banners or other hoopla which might overwhelm the men, some of whom have been held captive for as long as eight years.

"If the prisoner decides to come out and talk to the press, that's up to him," Reslie said.

Actors die

Two veteran actors, J. Carrol Naish, left, and Edward G. Robinson died this week in California. Naish died Wednesday of emphysema, though news of the death was withheld until Friday. He was 76. Robinson, 79, was famed for his tough guy roles on the screen and for his extensive art collection. He was to receive a special Academy Award this spring to recognize his contributions to the movie industry.

Kimberly plans service to observe end of war

KIMBERLY — Members of the American Legion have scheduled a memorial service Sunday to commemorate the end of the Vietnam war. It will begin with a 2 p.m. parade through the community.

The parade will assemble at Maes Avenue and Washington Street and proceed west on Kimberly Avenue to the Legion Memorial in front of the municipal complex. Leading the parade will be the Legion color guard and community band.

Legion Commander John Van Handel expressed hope that there would be no spectators for the parade, rather that everyone would join as marchers to commemerate the end of the war

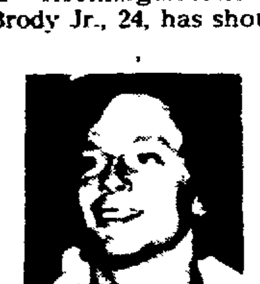

"Protestors marched against the war, now we hope that everyone marches for peace," said the commander. Plans call for talks from the pastors of the three churches in the community as well as a short message from Village President Eugene Schelfhout. Gordon Kotkosky will direct the band in a few numbers

American Legion Auxiliary members will serve coffee after the service Residents are asked to have flags flying in front of their homes.

At 6 this eveving the church bells, village fire alarm signal and the Kimberly-Clark mill whistle will be sounded to mark the signing of the peace treaty

Oleomargarine heir takes his own life

KINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — Three years after setting off a dollar fever with a promise to give away his fortune first-come, first-served — oleomargarine heir Michael James Brody Jr., 24, has shot himself to death.

Brody

His promise in 1970, when he was 21, lured hundreds of persons to a rented mansion in Scarsdale, N.Y., where Brody wrote thousands of dollars in checks to people he didn't know. The checks bounced.

Brody said the idea came to him while "tripped out on drugs."

On Friday, Brody was found dead in the home of his father-in-law, Robert Dubois, 10 miles west of here in Shokan, N.Y. The Ulster County sheriff's office said he had fired a shot into his head from a high-powered rifle held between his knees.

Brody burst into the news in January 1970 when he returned from a Jamaica honeymoon aboard a 140-seat jetliner chartered just for him and his bride, Renee They were separated a year ago.

He announced he would give away $26 million, setting off a wild rush to the rented mansion. Telephone lines were jammed with calls from as far away as California, and police blocked off the street.

"Peace is what I want," he said then. "When everyone is as rich as I am, I'll go to a desert island and leave the world alone and make love to my wife."

Brody said he wrote $60,000 in checks that day, but the Scarsdale National Bank and Trust Co refused to honor them for lack of funds in the account.

Brody was one of four heirs to a $6.8 million trust fund set up by his grandfather, John F. Jelke, who died in 1965. An uncle, Minot "Mickey" Jelke — convicted in 1955 on a compulsory prostitution charge — said Brody's share was about $1 million.

After 36 hours at Scarsdale, Brody fled to New York and Puerto Rico but, within 10 days, returned and appeared on the Ed Sullivan show, singing and strumming a guitar; at the White House, being refused admittance by the Secret Service; at a recording studio, cutting a record and giving away $100 bills; at a Honolulu rock concert, drawing only polite applause for his songs.

In April 1970, Brody was ordered held temporarily at a California mental institution after poice said he filed an unfounded complaint of being kidnaped. New York police arrested him on a marijuana charge the next month, saying they found him throwing things from his apartment.

In December 1971, Brody was charged with threatening President Nixon's life in an incoherent telephone call to the White House. He also was charged with setting fire to a mansion where he was living with a sister and niece in South Norwalk, Conn. Both charges were dropped after Brody was placed under psychiatric care. His lawyer had argued there wasn't enough evidence to link him to starting the fire.

Bank holding firm has increase in earnings

An increase of nearly 11 per cent in per-share earnings and a gain in total resources for 1972 was reported this week for the First National Corp., Appleton-based registered bank holding company.

Harold C. Adams, president, said the earnings at the end of 1972 were $4.46 per share compared with $4.02 at the end of 1971. Because of this, he added, dividends were increased during the year.

The compound growth rate of net operating earnings during the past five years has been about 11.5 per cent, it was reported.

New highs also were established for total resources which rose to $143,258,219 from $128,018,702 and for a book value per share reported as $44.95.

Adams said the loan portfolio gained 13.2 per cent to $86,441,568, as all types of loans in increased with a predominant surge in the demand for mortgage money.

"Improved business conditions last year played a part in achieving these new highs," he said. But we feel that continuing improvement and modernization of facilities, development of new services and intensified efforts of bank personnel in all areas of customer relations have been equally favorable

"Additional service improvements are planned for the future. Favorable conditions are believed to exist for another good year in 1973."

The corporation's annual meeting is expected to be held in late March. The corporation consists of The First National Bank of Appleton, Valley National Bank, The First National Bank of Seymour, Clintonville National Bank and Freedom State Bank.

Coating machines installed

MENASHA—The Edgewater Paper Co., 206 Garfield Ave., this week began preparing to install the first of two paper coating machines it will add this year in an expansion program that is expected to triple the firm's present sales volume within four years

"In our long range goals, we hope to triple our present volume and double our labor force within the next four years, said Ales M. Kapral, board chairman and president of the privately-held firm The company now employes about 40 hourly workers

The company installed its first coating machine several years ago when it entered the coated paper field. The second automatic coater similar to the first will probably be in operation by March.

The expansion is being brought on by increasing sales demands with orders now backlogged two months. The second and third coaters, the third an 84-inch wide machine, will be used to handle the growing demand, especially in the siliconized unsupported film area.

Kapral said the third coater will operate at 1,000 feet per minute with a fully automatic solvent recovery system. It will be ordered soon and be operating in late October.

Edgewater specializes exclusively in applying silicone coatings to film and paper. About 80 per cent of its business is the coated field, specifically the manufacture of release liners. The company, founded in 1917, had been primarily in heavy-duty industrial wrapping and packaging products field until the mid-1960's.

The company is headed by Kapral, who is the prime owner. The executive vice president is Gavin W. Young.

Courts

The cases of two Appleton women, each charged with one count of forgery, were continued Wednesday to Feb. 5 by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Sandra L. Nabbefeld, 21, 1833 S. Walden Ave., and Linda H. Budrick, 18, 509 N. Mason St., had been charged Tuesday with forging $65 checks on Dec. 12 at the Nabbefeld residence and later cashing them at an Appleton bank.

A 34-year-old La Crosse man was bound over to Circuit Court on seven counts of theft, after a preliminary hearing Wednesday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Probable cause on all counts was found in the case of Donald Franzini.

The defendant is charged with diverting cash payments totaling $1,359 to Valley School Suppliers, 1000 N. Bluemound Drive, Town of Grand Chute, while he was an employe there between May 5 and Nov. 30, 1971.

The payments were from people in the Green Bay area for a variety of sporting goods equipment, including golf clubs and shoes, hockey and ice skating equipment, softball jerseys and a pool table.

Michael W. Blenke, 25, 420 W. Ninth St., Kaukauna, was placed on probation Thursday for 18 months, after he pleaded no contest to three counts of indecent exposure

Blenke appeared before Judge R. Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where two other informational counts of the same offense were read into the record The incidents all reportedly took place between July 27, 1971, and Nov 20, 1972

Employment in Wisconsin rises during 1972

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A drop in Wisconsin's unemployment rate from 5.2 per cent to 4.6 per cent during 1972 and reduction by nearly 10,000 in the number of unemployed was reported Friday by a state agency.

The Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations said manufacturing employment in December exceeded 500,000 to pass pre-reccession employment levels for that sector of the economy.

The five per cent rise in manufacturing employment made it the state's largest industry category, the agency said, as well as its fastest growing.

Other state industry groups also were listed as having increased their employment during the last year—except mining and farming, which remained level, and construction, which declined slightly.

The department said personal income advanced 12 per cent to set a new record, new car registration also pushed toward record levels and building permits indicated new housing starts rose by 7 8 per cent.

Brewery denied injunction

A U.S. federal judge in Milwaukee District Court Monday denied a request for a preliminary injunction in the lawsuit filed by the black-owned People's Brewing Co., Oshkosh, which contended it wasn't given a fair chance to get large government orders for beer

Judge Myron L Gordon ruled that the lawsuit has not demonstrated the probability of ultimate success The brewery was seeking "at least $100 million" in damages from the Small Business Administration and the Defense Department

The injunction apparently was sought to prevent the awarding of contracts until the suit was settled The brewery, headed by Theodore Mack, contended that the two agencies failed to follow the requirements of placing a fair proportion of total government purchases and contracts with small businesses.

When People's Brewery shut down production last November, Mack said the brewery's future was seriously jeopardized by the alleged failure of the two agencies.

Mack and a group of Milwaukee business associates purchased the brewery two years ago. It employed about 30 when it shut down.

State tuition proposed for osteopathic study

MADISON — While the state is spending tax funds for expanded enrollment at two Wisconsin medical schools, it is neglecting the problem of recruiting and training osteopathic physicians, according to a group of legislators that has offered a bill to provide state tuition subsidies to those young people who desire to enroll in osteopathic schools elsewhere

The state provides such tuition support under present law for students who must enroll in schools outside the state because their desired training is not available in Wisconsin Among such supported professional curses are those in architecture and veterinary science Among the authors of the osteopathic support bill are Sens Walter Chilsen of Wausau and Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek

BUSINESS PRESENTED BY THE MAYOR

Mayor Sutherland read the following letter delivered to aldermen earlier in the day which constituted the calling of tonight's special Council meeting

TO ALL ALDERMEN

As you are aware last night I withdrew my submission for confirmation of the appointment of David F. Bill as Personnel Director following the ruling of City Attorney David Geenen that the appointment would be improper inasmuch as the appointee does not possess the degree requirements called for by city ordinance I wish to apologize for the awkard situation which has resulted, I can assure you that I did not become aware of the problem until it was brought up at last night's meeting

As is already apparent, the adverse timing ramifications involved in the present situation pose significant problems both for the City and for Mr. Bill In an effort to resolve these problems in the most satisfactory manner, I am calling a special meeting of the Common Council for 7:30 P.M. tonight, January 18, 1973

In conjunction with the meeting Alderman Beckley Chairman of the Attrition Freeze Committee has scheduled a meeting of the Attrition Freeze Committee for 7:00 P.M. in the conference room adjoining my office The Committee will act upon a recommendation that David F. Bill be hired as Negotiator and Personnel Administrator at an annual salary of $15 940 The Committee's recommendation will be presented to the Council for its action at tonight's meeting

During the Council meeting a motion will be made for a suspension of the rules during which Alderman Thompson Chairman of the Welfare and Ordinance Committee will submit the following ordinance change resolution

Resolved That Section 109 (3) of the Municipal Code of the City of Appleton be repealed and recreated to read

(3) APPOINTMENT OF DIRECTOR The Director of Personnel shall be appointed by the Mayor and subject to confirmation by the Common Council

Such appointment shall be on the basis of merit training, experience, with a degree from a college or University of recognized standing and having a major in personnel or public administration or suitable work experience deemed to be equivalent to the degree or the major

City Attorney David Geenen advises that these procedures will adequately provide for the hiring of Mr. Bill for the performance of the duties of the personnel director position

As I have already indicated, I believe that Mr. Bill is especially well qualified for the position I further believe that the utilization of the above procedures and favorable Council action will serve the best possible talent for the position as soon as is reasonably possible

Sincerely
JAMES P. SUTHERLAND
Mayor
CITY OF APPLETON

cc Department Heads

The Mayor discussed at some length the reasons for the special meeting and the procedures which would be utilized during the meeting He advised that because of the City's not presently having a Personnel Director aldermen might wish to suspend the rules if they wanted to permit Mr. Walter Mumme to respond to their questions The Mayor advised that on a volunteer basis Mr. Mumme had performed many of the duties which normally would have been performed by the Personnel Director in the applicant selection process The Mayor informed aldermen that Mr. Mumme's background included 30 years in personnel work with Kimberly Clark Corporation including 20 years part of [illegible] negotiations he further advised that Mr. Mumme had also served the City in recent years as a paid consultant assisting with negotiations and the hiring of the City's previous Personnel Director

THE Post-Crescent

Lesson from the Philippines

When President Ferdinand Marcos slapped upon the Philippines a new constitution legalizing a parliamentary form of government, he may have done more than merely perpetuate himself in a dictatorial role. He has cast into doubt the whole concept of democracy superimposed upon a people.

Marcos moved in a hurry when it appeared that the new constitution might run into opposition in the nation-wide plebiscite and in the Philippine Supreme Court. He first postponed and then abolished the plebiscite, forbade discussions on the subject except at carefully arranged "citizens' assemblies" which bowed and scraped and okayed the constitution. Then Marcos continued martial law in effect indefinitely and suspended the National Assembly. As long as he has the Philippine constabulary behind him, presumably he can maintain his dictatorial authority.

The United States has paternally patted the Filipinos on the head for decades. When we took over the country from the Spanish, ironically we gave Cuba, near at home, its freedom while we kept the Philippines, thousands of miles of Pacific Ocean away, purely for dreams of establishing our manifest destiny farther west. We were firm allies during World War II. We gave independence albeit with some financial strings that really were of as much benefit to Filipinos as Americans.

But American style democracy didn't catch on. Maybe the Filipinos took too literally the American wild west, shoot-em-up pioneer spirit. Combined with Asian style graft, it was a lethal combination and it killed representative government in the Philippines. The gaps between the haves and the have-nots, the extent of poverty, cynical leadership they all contributed.

When we imposed our style of government to a great extent upon Japan, it appeared to have greatly benefited the country. There are growing deviances, but the Japanese are a different people than the Filipinos. Except for the few years of American occupation, they had never been a subject people. They were also vastly disillusioned with their former regime. But the Filipinos had the Americans to blame for just about everything.

Marcos says his country is going back to a form of local government—except for his over-all authority—that existed before the Spanish came. It might work better for the majority of Filipinos. The Philippine experience is something for Americans to remember as they watch South Vietnam in the months ahead

Experiment in mental hospitals

In his best selling novel, The Odessa File, Frederick Forsyth points out the importance of the birth certificate in post World War II Germany. Getting the certificate involved great complexity, investigation and probes. Once a person had it, doors in Germany were opened without trouble.

Something of the same sort of blind acceptance seems to afflict mental hospitals in this country.

In a special investigation, eight Americans feigned symptoms of mental instability and were admitted to institutions. Once there apparently no one questioned whether they ought to be there or not.

Acutally the eight generally told the exact truth about themselves to psychiatrists. But they complained of hearing strange voices which said "empty," "hollow" and "thud." Twelve hospitals in different parts of the country and of differing kinds were used and some patients went to more than one. Once in a ward each patient acted normally — or as he or she would have elsewhere.

Not once was a single patient doubted by an official — but other patients sometimes questioned them and suggested that they were journalists or hospital inspectors. Medication they flushed down toilets as they sometimes saw other patients do. When asked how they felt, they answered "fine" — the truth — and all were eventually discharged as schizophrenic but in remission. The average hospital stay was 19 days — they ranged all the way from 7 to 52.

A second experiment was arranged because of the disbelief of psychiatrists. Officials were told that pseudopatients would be admitted so they were on the lookout for them. In a three months period, staff members reported suspicions about the authenticity of 193 patients. One staff member claimed pseudopatient status for 41 patients. One psychiatrist questioned the status of 23 patients. Actually no pseudopatients had been sneaked into the institution.

The experiments were described in an article in Science, the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by Dr. David Risenhan, professor of psychology and law at Stanford. "We know we cannot distinguish sanity from insanity," he wrote. How many of those suspected of being pseudopatients do not belong in a mental institution? How many seek to escape criminal charges by pleading insanity? Who can tell?

The experiment is a shocker. Staff members of course had no reason not to assume that all the patients were in need of hospitalization. Presumably such care was not harmful except for the social stigma that is still attached to cases of mental or emotional instability. Those who have voluntarily sought help should get it.

But the test throws into more confusion the system of involuntary commitment now being reviewed in many states.

What's the hurry?

There's an old story about a philosopher-type Chinaman visiting the United States, and being treated to a ride in the latest model automobile. His host was not above wanting to demonstrate the speed of the car. By chance the highway led alongside railroad track, and by greater coincidence a freight train was lumbering along. Gradually the two routes converged, to the point where they crossed The American stepped on the footfeed, gauged his distance, judged he could beat the train to the crossing, and did.

He slowed down, relaxed, and said to his foreign guest: "Do you know that we would have lost three minutes if we would have had to wait for that train?"

To which the somewhat shaken Chinaman replied: "So? Tell me, now that you've saved those three minutes, what are you planning to do with them?"

We cannot vouch for the authenticity of that story, although its lesson is obvious. We do, however, have at hand some research data worth considering, particularly for people who tend to hurry. The report tells the results of an experiment in which two drivers were assigned to cover an identical 1,000 mile route. One was ordered to make the best possible time. The other was told to avoid all unnecessary risks, follow the traffic flow, etc.

The trip took over 20 hours, and the fast driver arrived 31 minutes quicker than the other. In the process he passed about 2,000 cars, braked 1,339 times, and used 10 extra gallons of gas.

The "slow" driver passed 13 cars, braked 652 times. The tension, of course, was much less, and travel hazards reduced substantially, even if you measure only the added dangers that are involved in passing other vehicles.

Maybe we ought to think about that Chinaman and his simple question when next we get the urge to "lead the pack."

State manufacturers group rejuvenated

MADISON — The images of major institutions and organizations are often deceptive and inaccurate, reflecting as often the fears and presumptions of rivals and opponents as their own claims and actions.

Thus to say that the Wisconsin Manufacturers Association is on the way to becoming a real force in the politics and notably the legislative politics of this state will no doubt surprise. It had so often been the target of labor publicists, liberal commentators and politicians that it long ago acquired a name in statehouse affairs and policy-making that was not justified by the reality.

Now the signs of the reconstruction of the WMA and its more effective involvement in legislative affairs are drawing attention. They signify a revival of staff leadership and initiative that has been largely ignored.

Staff is key

The organization is not large. But it represents the bulk of the industrial corporations of the state and by definition ought to be the chief spokesman and advocate of the business community of Wisconsin. That it has not had such a role lately was the result of many factors. That it is showing promise of acquiring such a role is a significant development.

Wisconsin manufacturing industry has been led by many able and conscientious men. But a trade association in its public capacity does not always represent the quality of its dues-payers. It tends, instead, to reflect the capacity of the association staff. It is one of the important facts about Wisconsin politics that the WMA staff has been thoroughly reorganized and put into the hands of new men during the last two years.

The new chief of staff is Paul Hassett, executive vice president, who has had as rich an experience in public affairs as any other man now in comparable work in Wisconsin but whose past employment required him, by its nature, to remain mostly in the background.

Trained as a teacher, Hassett departed for newspaper employment early in life, became involved in local politics in Northwestern Wisconsin, came to Madison about 15 years ago to educate his children, and landed in the key assignment in the executive office of former Gov. Warren Knowles where he matched his chief's prodigious capacity for work for six years.

No Wisconsin governor ever had a chief lieutenant who was more loyal and productive. No doubt it was not accidental that when the WMA directors scouted for a new manager they were glad to learn that Hassett was available. Possibly no other man was available who fitted WMA needs and requirements as they saw them.

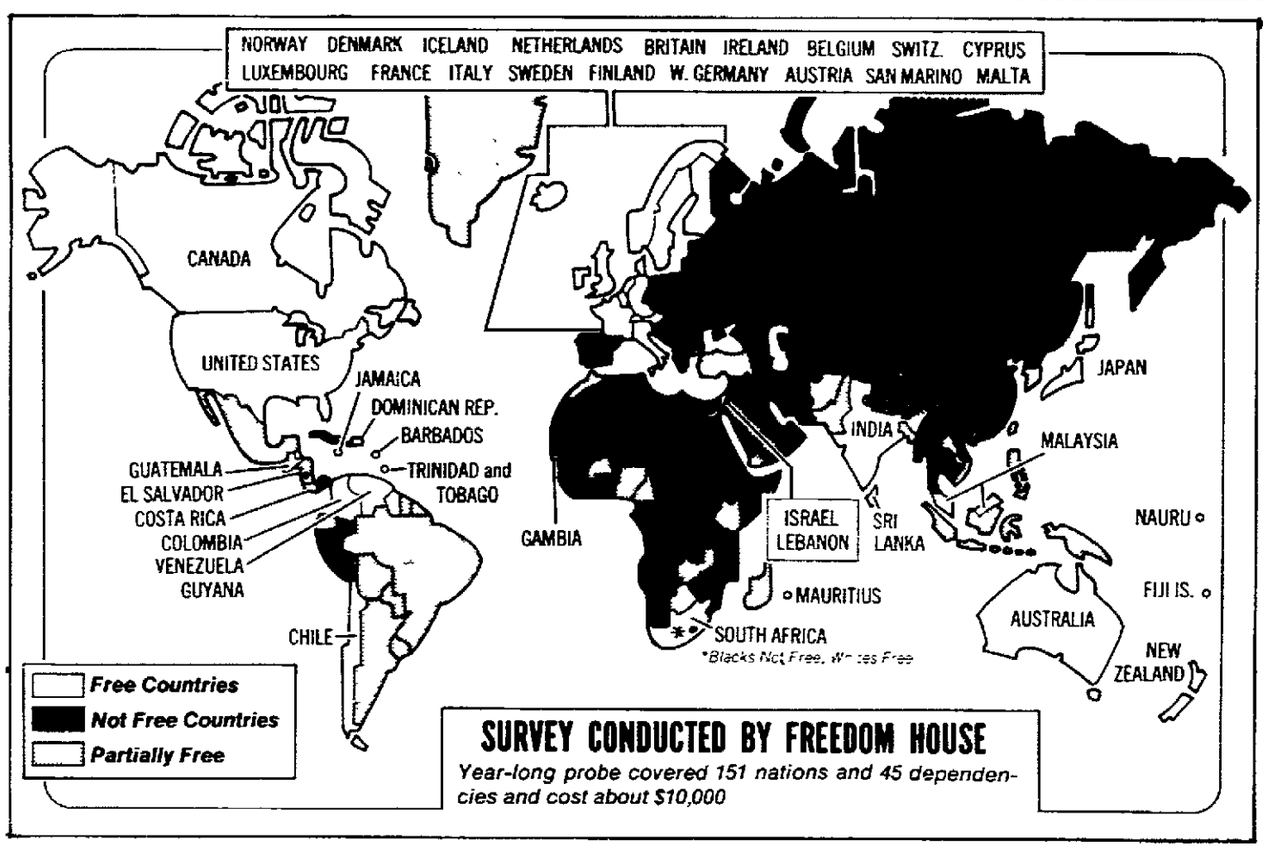

His first lieutenant in legislative relations is Kenneth Priebe, veteran politician, former legislator, once head of the administrative services of the Assembly, former state government officer. Perhaps no comparable organization has a front office team with such a wealth of acquaintance, experience and understanding of the operations of government and the men who run it.

It is not to denigrate Hassett and his staff to note that they begin their new careers at a time when Republican party which would be their natural target for friendly association has been weakened, but the new Democratic party of Pat Lucey is obviously interested in a better relationship and understanding with industry.

Indeed, their cups may appear to be overflowing. On the sidelines, quite outside the realm of politics, is a growing awareness of the problems of the private economy of Wisconsin, as most effectively shown in the repeated reports of Prof. Jon Udell, the University of Wisconsin economist, about the challenge to encourage industrial growth during the next decade.

Gains for Wisconsin business can be predicted with reasonable confidence as among the results of the new legislature.

The WMA made good choices for new staff leadership, and events suggest that they turned up at precisely the right time.

Much of world lacks freedom

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than half of the world's people lack the freedom to live as they wish and the percentage could rise if the present trend of governmental regulations continues, said a year-long survey issued by Freedom House. It added, however, that some countries seem to be heading toward fuller freedom than their citizens now enjoy.

The nonprofit organization spent a year on the survey which covers 151 nations and 45 dependencies and cost about $10,000.

The findings showed that in some nations, including Sweden and the Philippines, the tendency to regulate individuals' lives goes on. But in others, like Argentina, there is a trend in the other direction. And in Bangladesh, the prospects of freedom are hopeful if elections slated for next spring are "successful and civil rights are fully restored."

The study is called a "Comparative Survey of Freedom" and is aimed at establishing a "standard of freedom."

The survey poses such questions as: How much difference is there between a theoretically free country and one that is regarded as authoritarian? Who holds power in a particular country? How free are such institutions as the press? How does living in an authoritarian society affect the daily life of its citizens? What forms does repression take in a dictatorship?

The study places nations in three categories: "free", "partially free" and "not free."

Most of North America, Western Europe, India, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and a few nations in Latin America, including Chile, were placed in the "free" column. So were Lebanon and Israel in the Middle East and only Gambia on the entire African continent.

The rest of the world, said the study, is "only partly free" or "not free." The survey places all the countries under Communist rule in the "not free" column.

When they examined the political liberties of a country, the staff carrying out the survey checked whether general elections were held, how recently they voted, how the party system operates, the percentage of votes for a candidate, whether real changes in the country take place peacefully and whether there is regional or locally elected government.

The yardstick for civil rights included "freedom of the press, the impartiality of the judiciary, freedom from harsh and unusual punishments and torture and a defined and restricted sphere of governmental activity."

European parley could be trap

For some years the Soviets have been pressing for a European Security Conference. In the early stages the project was stalled because Moscow thought the United States did not qualify as "European," and our Western European allies did not feel like going into the bear pit without their American ally. That was smoothed over, and now representatives of all European and NATO powers have been meeting in Helsinki to work out an agenda. Once the agenda is agreed upon, the conference itself will be convened

On the surface the Soviets have been quite mollifying For example, they have agreed with the United States that military issues be reserved for separate treatment — at another conference on Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions scheduled for Vienna. Since military relationships would appear to be the core of any European Security pact, one wonders what there is left to discuss at Helsinki.

An Ideological Trap

In fact this European Security Conference could be a spectacular ideological trap and one hopes that the American and allied delegates are on the alert. This is said with some empirical misgivings: at the recent UNESCO Conference the American delegate on the resolutions committee of the subcommittee on communications voted FOR a Soviet sponsored resolution calling for censorship When the proposal hit the floor of the full subcommittee, we were in the embarrassing position of repudiating our own prior stance. In short, though we came out in the right place, we looked like bumbling amateurs.

Thus the first question to be asked is: What do the Soviets and their allies want? Romania has muddied up the waters a bit by suggesting that everybody agree not to use force against everybody else — a thinly disguised way of denouncing the Brezhnev Doctrine, which stated that armed intervention in Czechoslovakia (and by implication any other "socialist" state) was legitimate to protect the people from "imperialism." However, that will probably die by the wayside; it has all the earmarks of a bargaining chip which the Romanians will sacrifice for, say, a new steel mill.

What we can anticipate is a Soviet effort to legitimatize the status quo in Europe. If we take a close look at the status quo in Europe, we find that this means the maintenance of Communist dictatorships on one hand, and the retention of the Communist right to achieve power on our side of the hill. In other words, what is theirs is theirs — what is ours is up for grabs. This is hardly a symmetrical arrangement. Symmetry would require that in exchange for the validation of Communist dictatorship, the Western powers obtain the right to suppress the Communists, and other opponents. In short, Franco's Spain or the Greek junta would provide the models for France and Italy

Freedom of Movement Urged

Obviously no democrat would suggest that we go to the Security Conference in search of such an ideological bargain. What then, assuming we do eventually reach the conference stage, should be our opening bid? The London Economist suggested some time ago that, for openers, we should demand full freedom of movement between East and West This is an excellent proposal and our delegates should fight day and night to get it on the agenda.

Furthermore, we could do a lot worse than to introduce the Romanian proposal on our own initiative. (After all, we do not claim the right to intervene in, say, France to forestall a Communist electoral victory.) And there are undoubtedly other measures we could propose. But what is crucial is that we realize we are confronted by experts in political warfare who plan to squeeze every propaganda advantage to their maximum advantage. Please, Mr. President, send in the first team.

Frank Bernard is drawing stone to his lot on the south side of the Avenue, which looks like building there next spring.

Stone is being drawn from the river also to the front of the avenue lot next to and west of Bertschy's Store, for a new block (building) there. We learn that a Chicago gentleman has bought out Mr. Greenfield's interest in the lot, and will erect a block of stores in connection with Mr. Bertschy.

It is also stated that the Janesville owner of the former Merriman lot on the avenue has put his building under contract. It is to be some 80 feet deep.

We have not learned yet what buildings Mr. Smith proposes to erect on the new burned district.

We presume that Mr. Thos. J. Ward will make arrangements to rebuild on his former drug-store lot.

State licensing boards likely to become more consumer oriented

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON—The Lucey administration is preparing to extend consumerism into the state boards entrusted with the licensing and regulation of numerous state-supervised trades and professions, previously managed almost exclusively by representatives of the licensed occupations

Lucey suggested such an objective in his first term two years ago but did not actively pursue it Now he has told the legislature that he intends to get legislation giving private citizen consumers seats on the boards that have jurisdictions ranging from watchmakers to veterinarians, nurses to chiropractors, physicians, hearing aid fitters and dealers, pharmacists, engineers and architects, and many others

When the first experiments in "cabinet" government started four years ago, those various trade and professional overseers ostensibly were brought under the wing of a central state department of licensing and regulation

But the central control was more nominal than real The secretary of the agency is in fact a general housekeeper, providing record maintenance and central filing for the separate examining and licensing boards that remain autonomous with respect to admission to the trades and professions and in disciplinary control over licensed tradesmen and professionals

The governor has said that he wants the head of that agency—he recently chose an old political ally, Mrs Verginia Hart of Madison, for the assignment—to have a stronger hand to permit a more direct service in the interest of thousands of consumers involved

"Consumerism is one of the most effective ways in which the individual can fight back against irresponsible and impersonal institutions," he said, adding that "the state must join that fight"

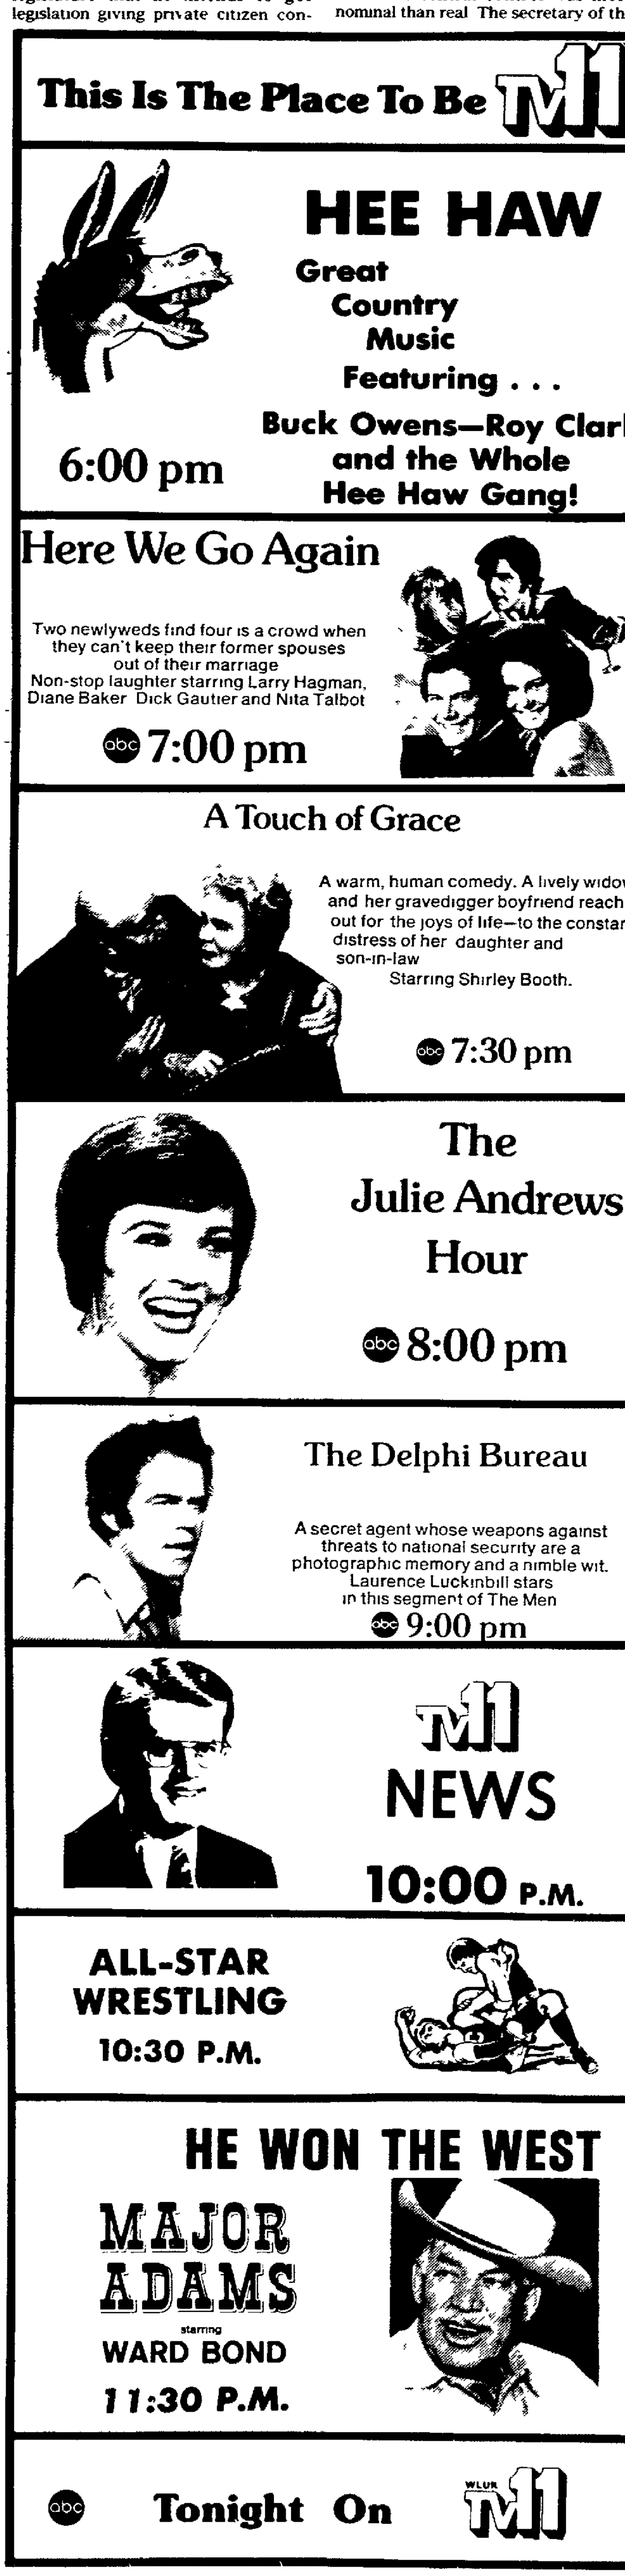

Subsequently, the Consumer Affairs Council, a creation of the Lucey regime which is headed by his lieutenant governor, Martin Schreiber, has added to the theme of more consumer control over the professions and trades licensed by the state

It recommends trimming the powers of the largely independent licensing boards, and to set up a council of eight consumers and five licensing board chairmen to advise the licensing and regulation department on policy Thus a substantial part of the powers of the professional and trade representatives on the categorical boards would be removed

The generally reserved attitude of the administration toward the traditional licensing preserves recalls that a major Lucey task force on health care adequacy pointed critically toward the licensing system governing 15 health care professions in the state

More public representation is needed, and assurance must be provided that licensed professionals continue the competency they demonstrated at original licensure, it asserted

Resistance by the trades and professions, some of them skilled in legislative relations, is widely expected to the moves by Lucey and his associates It will be inspired by the criticism implicit in the suggestions, as well as by a desire to maintain the "peer" control of the licensing system that has continued since almost all of the licensing laws were enacted, some of them many decades ago

Compartments

decoupage is the art of decorating flat surfaces by mounting pictures on them Objects to decorate include wood boxes pieces of wood to be used as plaques metal lunch boxes and so on

The first task the decorator must deal with is that of finding appropriate pictures This is where the decoupage file provides instant answers The proper pictures may very well be found in the file having been put there long before the actual need arose

To make such a file you will need a three ring notebook no longer in use and a supply of 9-by 12 inch brown envelopes

Trim off the flap of each envelope leaving the top open then cut a thumb notch

Creativity in music dying?

BY BILL SAUL

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Songwriter performer Don McLean, whose "American Pie" recording leads the list of Grammy Award nominees, says excessive exploitation has killed much of the creativity in popular music.

"That's one of the things I tried to say in 'American ie,' " says McLean. "The spoilers are taking over everywhere. In the song, I just said goodby to the America I dug."

His goodby, the object of controversy because of the many interpretations applied to the lyrics, has sold 3.5 million singles and 1.5 million albums in this country.

The Grammy balloting put the hit up for best album, single record, song and male vocal. The winners will be announced March 3 in Nashville.

Don McLean

McLean, 27, describes hemself as a pro with an amateur attitude, and says he's wary of full-blown, slick professionalism because of what he has seen it do.

"Lots of today's music isn't root music," McLean said in an interview. "To me it sounds like Tin Pan Alley — it's a slick trend folk music is in.

McLean, according to contract, produces one album a year, while some other artists are cranking out three and four times the work.

McLean says their creativity suffers because of the emphasis on output.

"In the song, I was trying to say what we're into now," he said. "It is a very mediocre time with few enlightened people and little genius. The pros are taking over and that stifles spontaniety."

This year, McLean has released another LP. It's called simply "Don McLean" and contains a cut called "Dreidel," which is getting much air play.

A Dreidel is a small top, and the songwriter says it tells the story of what happened to his life when "Pie" became well known.

"Dreidel is about the speed of my life, fragmented for awhile," he said. "I was twirling and whirling in a whirlpool of experience.

"I'm telling people to slow down.

"Americans are excessively hectic and insecure. Older people feel like they've missed out and the people who don't make it feel bitter. I'm saying it doesn't have to be that way."

An attorney who filed the suit Thursday said the girl has been living with Curtis and his third wife, Leslie, for five months.

Curtis and his wife have a son Nicholas, 2, and custody of his two daughters, Alexandra, 8, and Allegra, 6 by a marriage to actress Christine Kaufmann.

Movie review

Indian trouble

Robert Redford (with rifle) and Josh Albee discover trapper Stefan Gierasch, formerly a member of Milwaukee Repertory Theater company in the mid-1960s, is buried up to his neck by Indians in this scene from "Jeremiah Johnson," now at the Marc 2 Theater, Appleton.

Film sheer pleasure

BY MARTY SENSENBACH

This review could very easily turn into a thousand-word essay on excellence in filmmaking. It is so seldom nowadays that one has the privilege of seeing a film like "Jeremiah Johnson" (now playing at Marc 2) that when such a film comes along, the sheer pleasure of watching it is overwhelming.

JEREMIAH JOHNSON

Screenplay by John Milius and Edward Anhalt; music by John Rubinstein and Tim McIntire; produced by Joe Wizan; directed by Sydney Pollack; released by Warner Bros.

Principal cast

Jeremiah Johnson	Robert Redford
Bear Claw	Will Geer

Crazy Woman	Allyn Ann McLerie
Rob Doux	Charles Tyner

Rating: PG — parental guidance suggested

Above all, this is a quiet and subtle film. It is a tale of a man who must face not only the hardships of the mountain wilderness, but also his own inner weaknesses. This is a "Western" which portrays life as it must really have been in those days, and makes the John Wayne "look-out-fer-them-redskins" style of so-called "western" look even more ludicrous in comparison. There are mountain men and soldiers. Indians and settlers, but they are not in a continual state of combat.

The conflicts which do occur stem from territorial disputes, white-red misunderstandings, and, in one case, the defiling of an Indian burial ground. But the mountain men and the Indians respect one another, and even when Robert Redford, who plays Jeremiah, incurs the wrath of the Crows, it is because he has knowingly violated one of their most sacred customs.

Another commendable feature of the film is the use of real Indians in the Indian parts. All too often viewers are expected to believe that someone like Katharine Ross (to take a recent example) is a bona fide Indian. This must be irritating to the "real Indians," even though the situation is so laughable.

This film can be as simple or as complex as the viewer wishes. It can be viewed from many different angles according to the symbolism which one finds in it. But it is definitely a film to be seen more than once, if only for the joy of seeing such excellence on the screen.

Genuine, warm, funny

7:30-8 Channels 9-11 — A Touch of Grace, the new Shirley Booth series, has some genuine, warm and funny moments. If you watched last week's premiere, you know that Shirley, retired and on Social Security, lives with her daughter and son-in-law. She is being courted by a gravedigger, played by J. Pat O'Malley. Tonight he has won a weekend trip for himself and his wife, only he doesn't have one. The trip is across the bay (from Oakland where this is set) to beautiful Sausalito, and Shirley talks herself into being his "wife."

7-7:30 Channels 9-11 — Here We Go Again gets big critical points for not copping out at the end. Susan's (Diane Baker) sister (Lori Saunders) visits and attracts the roving eye of Susan's ex (Dick Gautier). Susan and Richard (Larry Hagman) would like both their exes re-married and out of their home and hearth and hair, but Laurie is not the one.

7-8 Channel 5 — Boot, the cute dog who belongs to the paramedics on Emergency is the focal point tonight. He's off his feet and acting listless and the paramedics are worried. What is wrong is something dog owners know about.

8-8:30 Channels 2-7 — The Mary Tyler Moore Show is wilder than usual and has a lot of guffaws. Mary is being courted by the most unsubtle man in history and he keeps embarrassing her. Watch as the worm finally turns — and gets everything wrong.

8-9 Channels 9-11 — The Julie Andrews Hour which is being taped close to air date, originally had Raymond Burr as a guest, but he's been bedded with flu since the Rose Parade so Peggy Lee jumped in — to the TV show. Robert Goulet is back for his third appearance.

Calumet civic group wants FHA sewer, water loans re-established

SHERWOOD —The Calumet County Civic Association (CCCA) went on record here Wednesday night endorsing re-establishment of Farmers Home Administration (FHA) grants for small communities undertaking sewer and water projects.

The group particularly wants support for the Village of Sherwood, which has been under pollution abatement orders from the state DNR for many years, and suffers from a shortage of water. Engineering plans were submitted for DNR approval recently for a lagoon type sewage treatment system and option has been taken on a well site, Village President Clarence Zahringer, told the association.

Recently the village was informed that FHA grants for sewage distribution and development and construction of treatment facilities had been terminated.

The CCCA voted to ask for support of re-establishment of the grants from Rep. William Steiger, (R-Oshkosh), and Sens. William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson.

The civic organization, composed of municipal officials and Chamber of Commerce leaders from throughout the county, also will seek a decision from the Public Service Commission (PSC) on the October hearing in Kiel for extended toll-free service from Kiel to Chilton, Elkart Lake and St. Nazianz. State Rep. Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton, will be contacted to see what can be done towards getting a decision from the state agency.

The CCCA had supported Kiel in its effort to get the extended coverage. It also has endorsed efforts from citizen groups in Stockbridge, Sherwood, Forest Junction and Hilbert, who are trying to get another hearing on the recent 40 per cent rate increase imposed on the subscribers of Stockbridge-Sherwood Telephone Company.

Zahringer reported that petitions for the new hearing were being circulated and 250 signatures had been collected in the sherwood area alone. He asked that William Hertel, legal counsel for CCCA represent the citizen group at the hearing, if one is granted. Hertel was only to represent the CCCA as a group, not the individual communities which make up the organization.
communities which make up the organization.

He cited the I-57 middle corridor endorsement as an example, where he represented CCCA and various government and Chamber of Commerce groups spoke for their communities.

In other business the CCCA voted that minutes of the meeting will be sent to all the sponsoring organizations, county clerk, and anyone of the group who requests them within one week of the meeting. At previous meetings the organization had been criticised for its lack of news coverage and distribution of its minutes particularly by the City of New Holstein. The New Holstein Association of Commerce had threatened to drop its membership if minutes were not received within one week.

The organization receives $50 membership dues from municipalities and Chambers of Commerce as well as from county funds. Groups receiving the minutes will be informed that they are "unapproved", as action on them is not taken until the next monthly meeting. Ex Secretary Ed Sohrweide, Chilton, had pointed out this was his reason for not distributing minutes earlier.

The organization also made it clear that the news media is welcome to attend its meetings. This practice also had been the subject of discussion at some previous meetings.

Membership dues in Heritage Country, an 11-county organization to promote visitors' dollars and recreational employment in northeastern Wisconsin, again was paid by CCCA. The fee of $600 a county was explained by Bill Brault, Green Bay president of the organization.

There was considrable discussion on whether the membership fee which includes, a recreational tabloid featuring all the counties, was the responsibility of the civic group or the county, or should be raised through advertising county businesses. However, the group felt that it would pay it this year, because in requesting $1,000 from the county board this expense had been mentioned.

The next meeting will be Feb. 21 at Stockbridge.

County aviation panel elects new chairman

OSHKOSH — A freshman Winnebago County supervisor, Daniel Schott, Oshkosh, was elected chairman of the county board's aviation committee Thursday, to replace Supv. Kenneth Seefeld.

Seefeld, an Oshkosh county board member for several years with longtime service on the aviation panel, asked to be relieved of the chairmanship two weeks ago. He cited other commitments, including his business, as reasons.

He will remain on the committee.

Don Apell, towns of Black Wolf and Algoma, was elected secretary to replace Schott. Peter Fara, Neenah, retained his position as vice chairman of the panel.

Election of committee officers is normally made at the county board's organization session in April.

Bradley backs state farm tax legislation

MADISON — State Rep. Gordon (Bud) Bradley, R-Omro, has joined in sponsoring bills that would prohibit non-farming corporations from deducting farm losses from state income taxes and develop an experimental program for licensing physician's assistants.

Bradley has introduced the legislation on farming tax write-offs. He was a co-sponsor oo the legislation designed to attack the problem of medical personnel shortages in the state.

Bradley said his farm bill would prevent large corporations from using farm holdings as tax write-offs, but would "not harm farmers who have chosen to incorporate for business purposes or legitimate agri-business concerns in Wisconsin. He offered the same legislation during the last session.

The idea is to preserve the family farm, he said, "by eliminating the tax write-off as a motive for maintaining farm holdings." The chance for tax write-offs has enticed corporations into competition with the family farmer.

Bradley said his bill will be sent to the Joint Survey Committee on Tax Exemptions to see how much an impact on state income tax revenues it will have.

The physician's assistant bill provides for creation of an 11-man council within the Department of Regulation and Licensing. This council will develop, over three months, certification standards and practice definitions for assistants and make recommendations to the Medical Examining Board, which will have final certification authority.

Medical personnel shortages are serious in the state, especially in rural areas, said Bradley. The physician's assistants could "ease the load of the overworked physicain and provide better health care for more patients."

Many could qualify as assistants, said Bradley. Former armed forces medics, for example, whose medical talent is now being "wasted."

High quality medical care will be insured, said Bradley, by requiring that assistants be subject to supervision by the examining board.

That board is required, under the bill, to report on the progress of the experimental program by Dec. 31, 1975 The program will expire on June 30, 1979.

Man awarded $11,650 in suit involving injury

A 12-member Circuit Court jury deliberated about 2½ hours Thursday before awarding a 26-year-old former Appleton man $11,650 in a personal injury suit relating to a May 10, 1971 traffic accident.

Lawrence W. Steudel, Sheboygan, who at the time of the accident was a U.S. Army recruiter in Appleton, had brought the suit against an Appleton contracting firm, The Hoffman Co. Inc., 717 W. Foster St., after he suffered multiple injuries when his motorcycle crashed through a construction barricade and struck a pile of steel beams. The accident took place near the intersection of Wisconsin Avenue and Meade Street, and the contractors had placed the barricade there while doing construction work at Appleton Papers, Inc., 825 E. Wisconsin Ave.

The actual award is pending approval of the court. and Judge Gordon Myse scheduled after-the-verdict defense motions for Feb. 5.

Following the two-day trial, the jury found the defendants, insured by Employers Mutual Liability Insurance o. of Wisconsin, Wausau, 60 per cent negligent, with the plaintiff 40 per cent negligent.

Steudel's attorneys maintained that the contractors placed inadequate warning signs and a faulty barricade, and that Steudel became confused as he drove east on Wisconsin Avenue. Steudel suffered foot and ankle, thigh and face injuries in the accident and was hospitalized.

The defense held that Steudel was not driving attentively, and that the warning signs and barricade had been placed with city approval.

Lonesome vigil

Despite springlike temperatures, a fisherman was undaunted and took to Little Lake Butte des Morts in his quest for a catch. Although there's open water beyond him, the angler chopped a hole in the ice to soak a worm and himself in the warm sunshine. (Post-Crescent photo)

Reporting of rapes urged by Warren

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The attorney general's office will propose legislation soon involving rapes and payments to victims of violent crimes.

Clarke Caywood, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren's legislative liaison director, talked about the bills and sought reaction Friday from prosecutors attending the Wisconsin District Attorneys Association mid-winter conference at the Beaumont Motor Inn.

Caywood noted that the FBI has called rape "the most under-reported crime in the U.S."

He said his office is trying to work out legislation covering both the language of the rape law and means of encouraging victims to report assaults

Rape is defined as intercourse by force and against the victim's will with the attacker overcoming her utmost resistance by physical violence or threat of bodily harm

The term "utmost resistance" may be taken too literally in some cases, Caywood explained. A woman shouldn't have to fight back to the extent she jeopardizes her life.

Several prosecutors indicated varying reactions from juries in interpreting the present rape law wording. Consideration is being given to a Michigan model code which talks of rape in terms of "by forcible compulsion" and "while avoiding risk of injury, death or injury to another person."

Caywood also suggested prosecutors work with local police to assure the most diplomatic handling of rape victims. In some instances women have been reluctant to press charges after less than sympathetic initial experiences with police officers

The prosecutors also were told to publicize Wisconsin's unique law which prohibits the use of a rape victim's name by the news media. Future legislation also may consider a mandatory closed preliminary hearing in rape cases, but most of the prosecutors agreed the trial would have to remain open to the public.

In the area of crime victim compensation, Caywood said his office will recommend payments up to $10,000 to victims of violent crime or persons injured attempting to prevent a crime. A special board would be established to administer these payments.

Such victim compensation programs already are operating in four states and federal legislation on the issue is pending

The prosecutors also heard a review of some current juvenile court problems by a panel of three judges.

Rock County Judge Sverre Roang told the district attorneys to be ready for increasing pressure from the public to seek waiver of 16 and 17 year olds from juvenile to adult criminal court because of the effects of the new age of majority law.

The new law now stops all juvenile court jurisdiction over a youth at the age of 16. If a boy commits a serious crime only a few weeks prior to his 18 birthday, he could face on a few days incarceration, a "mere slap on the wrist" before he would have to be set free.

Roang said he knew of one instance where a boy was sent to Wales only to be released because of his 18th birthday after staying only three days.

The waiver to criminal court on criminal charges is the only answer to this problem, but Wisconsin's current waiver procedures under the 1955 Children's Code are being questioned in light of recent Supreme Court decisions setting up strict guidelines for granting of waivers

A Milwaukee County court recently ruled state waiver laws unconstitutional on grounds they were too broad and lacked guidelines. Michigan was forced to revise its juvenile waiver laws last year after existing rules were overturned by the high courts on similar grounds.

A revised Children's Code was passed by the state Senate last term but never was acted on in the Assembly. A similar measure has been introduced again with the backing of the Council of Juvenile Court Judges and the state Judicial Council which would include the needed constitutional guarantees and guidelines covering waivers.

"This was lost in the shuffle last session, but we hope we can get it through this time," the judge said.

Polk County Judge Charles Madsen and Washington County Judge J. Tom Merriam told the prosecutors they would be initiating most of the requests for waivers. They explained some of the technical points required in recent court rulings on this question. They suggested that reasons for requested waivers be specific and well documented.

"You can expect increasing pressure for waivers, especially in cases the public is uptight about," Roang told the prosecutors, but he also urged them to remember that the welfare and rehabilitation of the child is still the primary goal of the juvenile court.

Some aid in solving the 18-year-old quandary also could come from proposed legislation which would extend juvenile court jurisdiction to age 19, thus assuring at least one year of supervision to youths found delinquent before age 18.

Transplant is victory for Appleton pastor

MILWAUKEE — The Rev. Robert Murphy, pastor of the Appleton Wesleyan Church, is a very happy man today.

A spokesman at Milwaukee County General Hospital, where Murphy underwent a kidney transplant Friday, said the young minister had a fair night. His wife was more ecstatic.

"He's just thrilled," Mrs. Murphy said this morning. "Everything's working fine. Bob said I should let everyone know."

It could have been a repeat performance of last August's disappointment, however. Then, Murphy's hopes for a transplant were quashed when a kidney flown here from California did not function properly.

This time, the kidney — brought in from Seattle, Wash. —worked perfectly in pretransplant tests. But doctors thought Murphy may have developed an ulcer —something which could have delayed the transplant. Mrs. Murphy said it was a rough thing for the doctors to have to tell the young man who had looked forward to the surgery and its promises of a new life.

He was a little down in the dumps, his wife said, but when he came out of recovery 12½ hours after he went into surgery, he knew it had worked.

Doctors found no ulcer, removed his two diseased kidneys and transplanted the healthy organ — all in about 8½ hours. When Mrs. Murphy went to her husband in recovery and asked him if he had a new kidney, she said he told her: "Yes, it's even putting out urine."

"He was really thrilled," he said.

Murphy learned in a phone call at about 5:30 p.m. Thursday that a new kidney had been found for him. The couple drove to Milwaukee that night and he was admitted immediately and pretransplant preparations were begun. Her husband didn't get much rest that night, Mrs. Murphy said. The family left the hospital at 1 a.m. Friday and Murphy hadn't yet gotten any sleep.

But he'll be able to do plenty of resting now. She estimated he will spend approximately the next month at Milwaukee County General Hospital

Mail will help to shorten and brighten his hospital stay, Mrs. Murphy said. He is staying in room 713 at the hospital at 8700 W. Wisconsin Ave

DA's oppose news shield law

Post-Crescent News Service

The Wisconsin District Attorneys Association went on record Friday opposing state legislation which would permit newsmen to refuse to reveal their sources of information.

The prosecutors, meeting in a mid winter conference at the Beaumont Motor Inn, unanimously passed a resolution calling proposed news shield legislation "hasty and imprudent."

The resolution indicated that the First Amendment provides sufficient protection of freedom of the press, and that further protective legislation would extend to members of the news media the same privilege now enjoyed by clergymen and attorneys to refuse information of criminal matters when such information is of a privileged nature.

The news shield law question has received increasing attention in recent months with newsmen in several states being sentenced to jail for contempt of court for refusing to reveal sources of information they printed. Gov. Patrick Lucey has indicated his support for a shield law in Wisconsin.

The association also passed a resolution asking an improved professional status of the job of prosecutor through increased salaries and staffs.

The resolution noted a one-third turnover in incumbent district attorneys and suggested salaries be raised to a "competitive level" in the legal field

There was some discussion among the prosecutors as to what such a level would be, but it was agreed a study committee could work out specifics in the future

Association President Robert Kaufmann of Washington County called the resolution the most important business to come out of the three-day conference. "We may be tooting our own horn, but somebody has to turn the spotlight on this problem," he noted.

The prosecutors also agreed to support the Council of Juvenile Court Judges in seeking passage of a revised Children's Code covering juvenile court operations. Recent Supreme Court rulings and the new age of majority law have cast doubts on the validity of some sections of the present code which has been in force since 1955.

Approval was also given to supporting a State Judicial Council legislative bill to correct defects in the Uniform Traffic Code which went into effect last October.

Eau Claire County Dist. Atty. Lawrence Durning was named association president, succeeding Kaufmann.

Fair board seeks improvement

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The State Fair Board agreed Friday to ask the State Building Commission to provide $800,000 to make improvements to the fairgrounds this year as the first phase of a master plan to renovate the grounds completely.

Architects say the first phase, to include a new cattle barn, two new rest room buildings, two new concession stands, a new entrance gate and ticket houses, new lighting, landscaping, utilities, and a system of signs, should be completed prior to the opening of the 1973 fair.

But the board's plans for an $18 million sports and entertainment coliseum, with its principal tenants the professional basketball Milwaukee Bucks and a proposed pro hockey franchise, continued to attract flak from City of Milwaukee officials, who fear the migration of tenants from their Arena.

At Friday's meeting, the board approved a revised master plan for redevelopment of the fairgrounds, with $18 million in borrowing authority authorized by the legislature, calling for:

—Location of the coliseum for professional sports and entertainment on land along the East-West Freeway, with parking space for about 3,800 cars.

—An historic village, including restaurant, shops and meetings rooms, at the southeast corner of the fairgrounds

—New agricultural buildings at the north end of the grounds linked by two malls.

—An aerial skyride between the north and south ends of the grounds.

—An infield race track parking area for 2,400 cars with entry from two tunnels.

—A building housing consumer products display areas, possibly with a restaurant, shops and booths open all year.

A consultant's report submitted to the board Friday called for a joint city-county-state authority to operate Milwaukee County Stadium, the Milwaukee Auditorium and Arena, the city's new convention center (MECCA), and the fair park coliseum

The report, by [illegible] elopment Research Associates of New York, projected a level of net income from the coliseum that would make construction and maintenance possible without tax money.

"Perhaps at this point Milwaukee is a little short of being a two-arena town," an official of the consulting firm said

"A joint authority, coordinating the operations of all of these facilities, could optimize potential of each, minimize overlap and enhance the financial performance of all," the report said.

William Carey, fiscal coordinator for the city, said enabling legislation from the legislature would probably be required for creation of a joint authority to operate all the facilities

Carey pointed to tenta[illegible] plans to expa[illegible] renovate the auditorium, and complete construction of MECCA, and predicted the Bucks would stay in downtown Milwaukee.

"The coliseum is destined to be a complete financial failure with the taxpayers of Wisconsin having to make up the difference" unless both the Bucks and a hockey team are signed to long-term leases, Carey said.

But William Alverson, Bucks' president, said the club was more interested in a new facility than in continuing its lease in an expanded Milwaukee Arena.

"With a new facility that is primarily dependent on professional sports for its income, the scheduling conflicts would be much less than what we are faced with today," Alverson said.

Lucey's probate reforms sent to legislature

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Saying the time for its enactment is at hand, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey today submitted a probate reform measure in both houses of the Wisconsin Legislature.

The measure would permit the informal administration of estates without an attorney.

"This legislation will have its greatest impact on the estate left by the majority of Wisconsin residents," the governor said in a statement.

Under present law, summary settlement is permitted only if the estate is insolvent or if it is less than $5,000 when there is a surviving spouse or children.

The Lucey proposal raises the $5,000 figure to $10,000 and would permit summary settlement where the estate has $3,000 in assets.

An additional feature of the bill would be to increase to $60,000 the net amount of an estate which may be settled by summary assignment, in other words without the appointment of a personal attorney, Lucey said.

Primary slated in Hortonville for school posts

HORTONVILLE — A primary will be held March 6 to determine the candidates for the board of education post that represents the towns of Greenville and Grand Chute.

Three candidates have filed declarations of intent to seek the office now held by Merlin Plamann, a Greenville farmer.

The March primary will determine the two candidates for the April 3 election

Two persons will oppose each other for the post representing the Village of Hortonville and the Town of Liberty. The post will be vacated Feb. 1 by Luther Huebner, the current board president.

Sherman Waite, a supervisor at the Wisconsin Telephone Co. in Appleton, was recently appointed to fill the post until June 30. Waite's bid for the one year left on Huebner's term will be opposed by Mrs. Jean Meads, 763 W. Main St., the wife of a local veterinarian

Floyd Meyer, a farmer who represents the Town of Center, will be unopposed in his bid for a three-year term.
